ITALIAN AIR FORCES RAKE MALTA BASE

Under Fire in Egypt

One of the few pictures to be received in this country showing actual action since Italy entered the European war is this . . . with British soldiers ducking into an excavation to escape Italian bombs during air raid on Matruh, Egypt. The assault was in retaliation for an Italian rout near Matruh in which the British captured a large number of men.

FIGHT OPENS ON DRAFTING OF MILITIA

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 13—President Roosevelt's proposal to put 50,000 militiamen in the field for active service brought the controversial subject of National Guard mobilization back to the fore today as a fight loomed in Congress.

The decision to recommend calling out almost one-fourth of the total National Guard strength was reached by Mr. Roosevelt and Henry L. Stimson, his new Secretary of War. Congress must approve before the plan can be put into action.

With Congress in recess for the Democratic national convention, there was no immediate comment on Capitol Hill. However, when Mr. Roosevelt in a special message on May 31 asked authority to mobilize the guard for any defense emergency, the request ran into a barrage of criticism.

The new White House announcement said tentative plans were to call out four of the guard's 18 divisions, seven anti-aircraft regiments, and an indefinite number of coast defense units. Indications were that a training period of perhaps a year was contemplated.

ARMY OF 1,415,000

If the compulsory training bill is passed, the War Department wishes to mobilize the entire guard for "at least a year."

Drafted recruits would be trained in the ranks of the regular army and guard, with a total of 1,415,000 men in uniform by next April.

The army continued the fast tempo of preparedness today by creating a new "streamlines" division of 8000 men, a force highly mobile and possessed of strong firing power. The new division, the Ninth, will be stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.—Editor's note.

Earlier at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt had disclosed that mobilization of the entire guard—numbering 230,000 citizen soldiers—was under consideration.

The Army chief of staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, gave his views on the subject to a Senate military committee, saying that he favored

Great Britain Calls Men, 32, to War Duty

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—Britain's new, highly-geared mobilization program which has been putting 7000 men a day into khaki, was extended today to include 32-year-olds as the nation dipped deeper into its reserves of manpower to meet the threat of invasion.

Approximately 300,000 men were called to register before nightfall in response to the latest call to the colors, bringing the total summoned to date to more than 3,300,000.

Lending urgency to the mobilization speedup was the growing activity of Germany's bombing squadrons, which roared across the channel again during the night to rain explosives on southwest England, Wales and Scotland.

Renewed German sorties came today. The air ministry announced that an "enemy" bomber was shot down in the English Channel by British fighter planes, and a raider was chased away over a northeast England town.

The ministry had announced earlier that 11 of the Nazi raiders were shot from the skies in the preceding 24 hours. The new German loss brought the week's "bag" to 73 and the total shot down, since the first daily widespread raids on England June 18, to 110. Two British planes were reported missing in the last phase of the war in the air.

At least 10 persons were killed in Scotland during extensive raids yesterday, but no announcement was made concerning the casualties resulting from last night's attacks. The Air Ministry said that damage in Southern England and Wales

ITALIANS RAKESHIPS AND BASES

ROME, July 13 (AP)—Renewed Italian bombing raids on Britain's air and naval bases at Malta, intended to smash that vital Mediterranean strong point, were reported today.

At the same time, repeated hits with big bombs on two British cruisers and a battleship were claimed in the running, week-long naval and air battle in the Mediterranean.

The loss of an Italian destroyer "as a result of enemy bombardment"—the second to go to the bottom since units of the two navies met in action Monday—was officially acknowledged.

The action at Malta, reported by the official news agency Stefani, was centered on British airfields. Planes on the ground were machine-gunned and hangars were bombed.

The latest naval brush began Thursday, the Italian high command communique saying a British naval formation was "constantly pounded throughout the day by our aviation.'

"The formation," it was added, "divided into three groups during the night, all proceeding eastward at different speeds.

"When contact was regained yesterday, the three groups were bombed by a whole mass of planes."

FOOD SHIPS SUNK BY GERMANS

BERLIN, July 13 (AP)—The German high command proclaimed fresh successes today in the "starvation blockade" against England, claiming the seizure of "valuable" cargoes and asserting effective blows had been struck from the air at British steamers in the English channel.

Continued bombing of harbors and other strategic areas in the British Isles also was reported.

At the same time, the military command reported the sinking of 24,674 tons of "enemy cargo space." The period of this action was not disclosed.

German planes over the English channel were credited with sinking one outpost vessel and a cargo steamer of 2000 tons and with seriously damaging five other cargo steamers.

The air force meanwhile was said to have "successfully bombed" airdromes, harbor facilities and munitions factories in England and Scotland.

British air losses yesterday totaled 13 planes, the high command said. Five German planes are missing.

Turkey-Rumania Trade Ties Cut

BERLIN, July 13 (INS)—Economic negotiations between Turkey and Rumania have been broken off and the Turkish delegates have left Bucharest, the official German news agency, DNB, reported from the Rumanian capital today.

The dispatch said it was understood the negotiations failed because of Turkish demands for increased deliveries of Rumanian oil.

According to DNB, these demands were rejected by Rumania for fear Turkey might resell the oil to Great Britain.

New U. S. Seaplane Tender Launched

CAMDEN, N. J., July 13 (AP)—The navy's newest seaplane tender, the 13,000-ton U. S. Albemarle, slid down the ways here today in a double ceremony that saw the laying of a keel for the new U. S. cruiser Cleveland.

The Albemarle was christened by Mrs. Lewis G. Compton, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Carol Puts New Curb on Jews

BUCHAREST, July 13 (AP)—King Carol's new totalitarian Rumanian regime put into effect today anti-Semitic orders forcing Christian wives of Jews to give up government jobs.

This was one more of a series of steps being taken speedily to create in this country a small-sized model of Europe's larger totalitarian states, and followed a night of conferences involving King Carol, German air and ministry attaches and most of the members of the cabinet of Premier Ion Gigurtu.

Diplomatic circles said Rumanian foreign policy was reviewed in what they labelled the beginning of closer German-Rumanian co-operation.

HITLER'S ARMY REHEARSES FURIOUS BLITZ ON BRITAIN

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, July 13 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, a past master at keeping the world, including his own people, in suspense, once again has everyone guessing—this time as to when, how and where he will strike a concentrated blitzkrieg blow at Britain.

However, no competent foreign observer doubts he will start the gigantic offensive only when he is satisfied that all essential groundwork has been completed.

Part of that "foundation" is being laid in the daily air attacks and the starvation blockade which, carried out by submarines, surface ships and bombing planes, claims a toll of 4,329,213 tons of "enemy merchant shipping space or shipping space usable to the enemy."

TROOPS SENT EAST

So certain is Hitler of victory over Britain in case her statesmen decide to continue hte fight that hundreds of thousands of troops who had been stationed in the west have been transferred eastward during the week.

The collapse of France ended the necessity of keeping the Siegfried line fully manned. According to official information these men are being taken to their home garrisons. Many receive furloughs to work their farms or at their businesses, for there is a dearth of male hands everywhere in Germany.

Editor's Note—The big question of the war is: When will Hitler strike against Britain with the full fury of the blitzkrieg? Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Associated Press Berlin bureau, reports the Germans are so confident of victory they are moving troops eastward—away from Britain.

To reveal specifically wherein preparations lie would be tantamount to impairing forbidden military information. It must be assumed, however, that the thoroughness and circumspection of the preparations are equal at least to those preceding the Norwegian and western campaigns.

It will be recalled that last autumn even high-ranking German officers doubted that a huge army could be kept in the dunkers, pillboxes and fortresses of the Siegfriend line through the winter without getting dissatisfied, even rebellious.

PRACTICE THEIR BLITZ

But Hitler insisted the army use those winter months for incessant practice at tasks which were in the offing. Newsreels of that period showed German soldiers, in rain, sleet and snow, going through exactly the sort of Indian-like advance —by leaps from house to house, from ditch to ditch, through streams and forests and across fields—which proved so effective in Belgium and France.

Hitler's patient waiting had a twofold advantage.

For one thing, when the western offensive really began on May 10 his troops so often had practiced

Ford and Wife See Their Grandson Wed

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 13 (AP)—Twenty-year-old Anne McDonnell and Henry Ford 2d, grandson of the automobile manufacturer, were married today in a pageant-like ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church.

KATHLEEN KENNEDY
Bridesmaid at Nuptials

As they stood at the flower-banked altar of the Church of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen gave a discourse on the power of love.

"Rings can be broken and lost," he said, "but love is undying."

The pretty blond bride was smiling as she went to the altar, with her long white veil trailing behind her.

FORDS SEE BRIDAL

The 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford was baptized a Catholic, the faith of his bride, yesterday in the presence of his parents, the bride and her parents.

Long before the marriage ceremony, hundreds of villagers had gathered across the street from the little church to view the notables and to applaud such personages as former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, Sr., and William S. Knudsen, head of the nation's defense production program.

The bride's 13 brothers and sisters and her 10 first cousins, uncles and aunts formed a cheery family background for her wedding.

Their camaraderie broke the ice that might have surrounded a social event of first rank and was an informal note in a scene thronged with fashionable guests and industrial leaders.

The silver-haired elder Ford and his wife, who have been married 52 years, came by private car for the ceremony.

Kathleen Kennedy, daughter of Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. Ambassador to England, was one of Anne's bridesmaids.

Special police were on duty, but no more, said the village police chief, than ordinarily handle the crowds and traffic at a big wedding here.

HENRY FORD, 2ND
Ford's Grandson Weds

Twenty-year-old Anne, daughter of James Francis McDonnell, a Wall st. broker, and granddaughter of the late inventor, Thomas E. Murray, wore a billowing white tulle gown and carried white orchids.

For the reception and wedding breakfast afterward a pavilion was erected on the lawn of her home, a huge half-timbered house overlooking the Atlantic ocean.

There was to be dancing on a specially built floor. Two rooms of the house were nearly full of wedding presents.

Priest Tells Fords Love Is Eternal

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 13 (INS)—Mons. Fulton J. Sheen of Catholic University, who married Henry Ford II and Anne McDonnell today, departed from the usual ceremony and addressed an exortation to the young couple.

His sermon to Anne and Henry follows in full:

"Henry and Anne, you are about to enter a union of which God alone is the author and which our blessed Lord has consecrated and placed among the holiest institutions of religion.

"Like unto love of Christ for His church, your love has the same characteristics: it is eternal, sacrificat and fruitful.

LOVE IS ETERNAL

"Love by its very nature is eternal. No one has ever said 'I will love you for two years and six months.' There are only two words in the vocabulary of love: you and always. You because love is unique; always because love is eternal.

"Your marriage bond is unbreakable in the supernatural order because modelled upon the union of the divine and human natures in the unity of the person of our Lord, as our blessed Saviour took upon Himself a human nature not for 33 years but for all eternity, so do you take one another not for any period of time but for that timelessness which only death can

Hayfork Subdues 4 Nazi Fliers

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND, July 13 (AP)—Two villagers armed with a hayfork and a toy pistol were credited today with capturing the crew of a German bomber.

The village innkeeper and a house painter saw the bomber crash in a field last night.

They found one of the crewmen dead and the other four injured. The innkeeper substituted one of the Germans' revolvers for the toy pistol he carried and held the injured men at gunpoint until a passing motorist obtained military assistance.

VANDERBILT HEIRESS WANTS TO BE ACTRESS

NEW YORK, July 13—Gloria Vanderbilt, now 16, photogenic, rich, talented and—determined—wants to be an actress.

And as a result, new troubles lay ahead for her guardian aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, whose life has been tranquil since her successful custody fight in 1934 with Gloria's mother.

Gloria Vanderbilt

For Mrs. Whitney is ultraconservative, and besides her plans for the young heiress are far removed from the stage. Quietly, Gloria's aunt has been making plans to introduce Gloria to society next year.

But Gloria, it was learned, has the theatrical bug following rehearsing she did for a part in "The Constant Nymph," a comedy being put on by the Red Barn Theater in Locust Valley, L. I.

Everything was all set for Gloria's theatrical debut until she became less and less constant in showing up for rehearsals. Finally, she was given the pink dismissal slip.

The dismissal might have taken the wind out of the swag professional sails, but not Gloria's. She is determined to keep on with her ambition to be an actress and according to friends, will rejoin the Red Barn Theater later in the season when social demands let up sufficiently to permit her to show up for rehearsals.

From a gangling child who perched on a rail to watch Long Island horse shows, Gloria has shot up into a slim, dark beauty, and is said to be a popular rhumba partner on her infrequent night club excursions.

BETTY GRABLE, STAGE AND SCREEN STAR

Betty Grable Won't Hide Her Chief Support

HOLLYWOOD, July 13 (AP) — It's a pleasure to report that Betty Grable, after achieving a measure of Broadway success, isn't returning to her first love so convinced she's a great actress that she intends to subordinate all her other charms to the dramatic.

Chief among those charms, of course, are a pair of "million dollar legs." Then there's a head of pretty blonde hair, an adequately attractive face and pretty figure.

Why that combination, supported by at least average acting ability, has not earned Betty fame in films has puzzled many persons, not forgetting the lady in question. But she guesses at the reason:

"It's 11 years since I came to Hollywood in a chorus. Producers just got too used to seeing me around."

The best part in those 11 years is hers now—a lead stressing light comedy in 20th Century-Fox's "Down Argentine Way." But she had to go to New York and win acclaim in "Du Barry Was a Lady" to get the offer.

The stories that her success out of pictures had influenced her to turn solely to acting bring quick reply:

"That would be silly." I want to be known for something besides my legs, but I can't forget they're what kept me in the limelight when good parts passed me by."

Sightseers Trample Crops in Britain

LONDON, July 13 (AP)—Sightseers are proving a worse menace to crops than German bombs in some instances, the Ministry of Agriculture indicated today in issuing an order making trespassers liable to $200 fine.

"In a recent instance," the ministry said, "negligible damage was done by a bomb to a wheat field, but the entire crop of 25 acres was completely ruined by being trampled by sightseers."

Slain R. I. Widow Had $20,000 in Bank

VICTIM'S HOME

PROVIDENCE, July 13—Mrs. Eliza Kimball, 80, slain yesterday by robbers who obtained $161 from her apartment, had bank accounts totalling "from $20,000 to $25,000," police revealed today.

Police investigation of the murder was proceeding on the theory the elderly widow was smothered by a towel that had been twisted over her nose and mouth.

Investigators revealed that fingerprints of two different intruders were taken from pieces of furniture in the Althea st. apartment where Mrs. Kimball's body was discovered, tightly bound, on a bed.

The victim's four-room suite had been ransacked by the murderers. Bureau drawers were found upside down, their contents scattered about the rooms.

FOUND $161

Police, in reconstructing the crime, believe the intruders forced their way into the apartment, bound and gagged Mrs. Kimball, then methodically went through her belongings until they found $161 which she had withdrawn from the bank a few days ago to provide care for her husband's grave.

Then the pair departed, leaving the frail, gagged woman on her bed. Suffocation was believed to have been the direct cause of death. Her body was found by a grandniece, Mrs. Charlotte McManus.

Near the body a detective discovered a piece of torn shirt, which may be an important clue.

Since there were no signs of violence, police decided the shirt was used in tieing their victim.

HANDS, FEET TIED

Two neighbors, Mrs. C. A. Martin and Mrs. E. J. Martin, told police they saw the two men walk along a driveway beside the house and enter a rear door. One carried a satchel and the pair were believed to be salesmen.

Mrs. Kimball's body was lying across the bed in the bedroom of a niece, Mrs. Elizabeth Murray, 67, with whom she made her home.

She was fully dressed, wearing a house dress and a green apron. Her feet were tied together with a pillow slip and her hands bound behind her back with a torn curtain and a towel.

Another turkish towel had been formed into a pad and used as a gag, with the ends tied behind her neck.

Police advanced the theory that the murderer was well acquainted with Mrs. Kimball's daily schedule.

Mrs. McManus told investigators she visited her aunt every Wednesday and Friday, to be company for her while Mrs. Murray was out.

GIRL BATHER, CLERK MYSTERIOUSLY SLAIN

LOS ANGELES, July 13 (AP)—The bodies of a 22-year-old former Wisconsin schoolteacher, clad in a white bathing suit, and a 44-year-old railway mail clerk were found shot to death last night in an apartment. Detectives listed the deaths as murder and suicide.

The victims, Police Lieuts. Genes Bechtel and S. R. Lopez said, were Gertrude Hertting, red-haired visitor from Wauwatosa, Wis., for graduate study in social service work at a university, and Arthur Slater, former high school agriculture teacher.

A diary Detective C. H. Schumacher reported finding in Slater's pocket told a story of his love for the girl. Its cryptic notations included:

June 14—". . . Visited Gertrude. She loves me. November 1 marriage."

June 15—"Drove Gertrude downtown. Hell."

June 20—"In love."

June 22—"Visited Gertrude . . . Better dead."

The girl's first name was mentioned Feb. 2, when an entry read: "Visited Gertrude. O. K. Drove along beaches."

Last inscription was Thursday: "Clear and hot."

Last reference to Miss Hertting was on June 28.

Bodies of the pair were found by Mrs. Margaret Sharp, manager of the apartment house. Miss Hertting apparently had just returned from a beach outing. She was shot through the heart as she sat on a divan. Slater was lying on the floor, a bullet through his temple. A revolver lay near his outstretched hand. A third slug had ripped into the wall. Officers said the deaths apparently occurred late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Sharp said Miss Hertting described herself as a graduate of a Wisconsin normal school and a teacher for 18 months, who had come here for further college work. She added that the girl had introduced Slater as "an old friend of my family."

14 New Firms Go Into Business Here

Fourteen new manufacturing firms, furnishing employment for about 200 persons, have begun operations in the metropolitan area, according to a survey by the Boston Chamber of Commerce made public today.

The report also tells of expansion of five other companies and of three new products introduced by local firms.

For the first six months this year 53 new industrial units employing upwards of 1500 persons have started in business, compared with 46 new firms during the comparable period of 1939, employing about 1300.

U. S. S. America Crew Vets Meet Tonight

The former members of the crew of the U. S. S. America will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in the Clarendon Congregational Church vestry, Collins st., Hyde Park, to arrange for a committee to attend the American Legion convention in September. Several officers and men will speak and all ex-members of the S. S. America are expected to attend.

When bandits entered the offices in Simon Box Co.'s Cambridge, Coralee Neustadter (here), thought it merely a prank . . . but when the two gunmen convinced her they were serious, she was forced into a back room with two other employes. Then, in the presence of several workmen, the robbers took $850 payroll from the firm's president, Henry Simon, Sr.

2 Cambridge Breaks In New Crime Wave

A $1000 safe break in Central sq. and daring burglary of a Brattle st., residence, both in Cambridge, today featured the new crime wave for which police of a dozen Greater Boston cities were mobilized.

Holdups, handbag robberies and car thefts were staged in Cambridge, Brookline, Roxbury, South Boston and Mattapan, while two desperadoes who have terrorized citizens of many New Hampshire and Massachusetts communities also arrived in Boston.

While Mr. and Mrs. Louis Graton of Brattle st., Cambridge, were asleep, burglars ransacked their home and entered the couple's bedroom to seize $25 from Graton's trousers pocket, $65 from Mrs. Graton's purse, and pearls, pendants, diamond pins and rings valued at $500.

Using sledgehammers, burglars also stole $1000 from a safe at the Lincoln Market in Pearl st., Cambridge.

William E. Beach, 34, of Harvard st., Cambridge, was beaten in Remington st., near his home, when he refused to hand over his money to two hoodlums who accosted him.

After knocking him down and slugging and kicking him they fled, leaving Beach still in possession of his wallet, which contained $8 and personal papers.

In the sudden outbreak of holdpolice tried to discern the work of the two gunmen who fought four battles in escaping officers during a zigzag crime tour of New England.

Their auto, riddled by machine-gun bullets in their last clash with police at Laconia, N. H., was discovered abandoned in an Alston dump.

Shortly after the machine was found, two masked bandits strode into the Simon Box Co. plant in Concord ave., Cambridge, and held 40 factory workers and five office employes at gunpoint as they staged an $850 payroll robbery.

SEIZED BAG

The pair brandished revolvers at a 20-year-old girl employe, Coralee Neustadter of Columbia st., South Boston, and forced her to lead them through an office to a landing platform where Henry Simon, Sr., 50, and his assistants were waiting to give 40 workers their pay.

In another bold holdup today two masked men of the same description invaded a delicatessen store in Blue Hill ave., Mattapan, disarmed a uniformed police officer who was making a purchase and robbed the proprietor of $25.

FLEE WITH MONEY

They slipped into the store while Patrolman Thomas J. Manning's back was turned. One man seized the officer's arms from behind while the accomplice stripped him of his gun and ammunition.

Manning and the proprietor, Hyman Kabachnick, were then forced into a rear room and the bandits fled with the money.

Meanwhile, a thug stole a handbag containing $17 from Sarah Gorman, 30, of Dorset st., South Boston, in front of her home.

Horse Goes On Rampage

Injury to a pedestrian, damage to a parked automobile and the smashing of two plate glass windows lay in the wake of a runaway horse today in Tremont st., South End.

The horse, driven by William Johnson, of Shawmut ave., South End, went on the rampage at Kendall and Tremont sts. On Tremont st., the wagon sideswiped a car owned by Bernard Stark, Arborway, Jamaica Plain. Mounting the sidewalk, the frightened horse caused the wagon to swerve into two plate glass windows of a variety store.

Joseph Cautericcio, 47, of Division st., Chelsea, attempted to halt the horse and wagon, but was knocked to the ground. He was taken to City Hospital.

The horse was finally halted near Massachusetts ave. and remont st., by a man whose name was not learned.

Two Indictments Name Pendergast

KANSAS CITY, July 13 (AP)—Tom Pendergast, deposed Kansas City Democratic boss; R. Emmet O'Malley and A. L. McCormack, were named by a federal grand jury today in two indictments charging conspiracy to obstruct justice in connection with the $9,000,000 Missouri fire insurance compromise.

Pendergast and O'Malley former state insurance superintendent, have served federal prison terms for failure to pay income taxes on money the government charged was paid them in connection with the compromise.

Shipyard Workman Held in Fight Death

BROCKTON, July 13—Accused of causing the death of 48-year-old man in a fist fight, Louis J. Sumpter, 29, a shipyard worker, was held in $10,000 today for trial July 23 on a manslaughter charge.

The victim was Leo Sullivan, of North Montello st., father of four children.

G. E. Plant Guards Armed, Vacations Off

As a precaution against possible sabotage, guards at the General Electric plant in Lynn have been armed and vacations of all workers engaged on government contracts have been cancelled, it was disclosed today.

In addition, all manhole covers to drainage system emptying into the Saugus river have been sealed,

F. D. Jr., Says Dad Stole His Thunder

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 13 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., admits that being the son of a famous father has its drawbacks. For example:

"Father's speech last month at the University of Virginia on the entrance of Italy into the war completely blacked out my minor accomplishment of the time. He was down there partly to see me graduate from law school. That was a major accomplishment to me, but in the excitement everybody forgot about my part of it all."

SEIZED WOBURN ROLLER SUBJECT OF NEW DISPUTE

While Mayor Kane of Woburn planned to "read the riot act" to police and firemen of the city at a torch-light parade and "Roman holiday" tonight, a new dispute arose today over possession of the highway department road roller attached and seized by a former municipal employe.

John J. Forbes, one-time city electrician, took the roller as security for $1698 back pay awarded him by the courts.

Mayor Kane signed a check for the amount and Forbes released his claim on the roller and offered it back to the city again.

MAYOR FEARS SABOTAGE

The mayor, however, refused to take possession of the machine until he could have it inspected for possible damage.

Today, Michael J. Winn, owner of a yard in which the roller was stored, refused to have it longer on his premises.

By his order, it was hauled to the Boston and Maine freight yards in High st., nearest vacant spot of land.

There it remained, a mechanical white elephant, with no one willing to accept its ownership or responsibility.

The mayor finally assigned a police officer to guard the roller until the dispute could be settled.

ROMAN HOLIDAY

To his proposed "Roman holiday" tonight, the mayor specifically invited Sheriff Joseph M. McElroy, the Woburn school committee, the city council and members of the police and fire departments.

"I want them all to be on hand because I'll mention them in the speech I'm going to make afterwards," he declared.

Highlight of the unique municipal celebration will be a huge bonfire on Woburn Common, where, with appropriate ceremonies, photostatic copies of an execution issued to former City Electrician Forbes—which resulted in seizure of the roller and trucks—will be burned to a crisp.

The Forbes' execution was satisfied when Mayor Kane signed a check for $1698 back pay due the city electrician. He also announced that checks for firemen and policemen would be ready today. The payments will be financed by an 80-cent increase in the town tax rate.

The mayor, however, ordered the city auditor to compute the amounts owed the city in back taxes as well as water bills and poll charges, and deduct them from the money to be paid the policemen and firemen.

Further court complications loomed up for the mayor on top of the supreme court defeat, with the announcement by Atty. James E. Henchey, counsel for the victorious firemen and policemen, that he will file three petitions in supreme court, demanding school teachers receive back their 1938-39-40 pay cuts.

Sad Father Buries 6 Slain by Mother

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—A grief-stricken father today buried his six children who died when their mother attempted suicide by illuminating gas Wednesday in their humble Bronx apartment.

The mother, Mrs. Louise Nicosia, 43, is critically ill in Fordham hospital, charged with homicide, and unaware that her act took the lives of her children.

The father, Joseph, visited her at the hospital last night, but she was unable to recognize him.

Today speaking in Italian, he tearfully chanted farewell to each child in a Bronx undertaking establishment.

"You were like a mother to your brothers and sisters," he said as he stopped beside the casket holding the body of Carmela, 12, his oldest daughter.

"I remember how you and I used to dance the waltz and how you always said: 'Daddy, don't you think I'm improving?' he said to Angelina, 11.

And then to his son, Joseph, 8: "Remember, Joe, how you used to tell me about your fights in 'I'm never afraid to fight for my rights.' You were a brave boy."

And the she spoke to the others, Anna 7, Dominick 5, and Frances 4.

The six children, by tragic and ironic chance, were buried next to the graves of four children who were slain several years ago by an insane father.

380 Children From Britain On U. S. Liner

NEW YORK, July 13 (AP)—The U. S. liner Washington arrived from Galway, Ireland, today on her final war refugee removal trip, with 1610 passengers, 273 of them aliens.

The voyage was uneventful in contrast to her last trip, when she was stopped by a German submarine.

Among 14 returning newspapermen was Kenneth Downs, director of the Paris bureau of International News Service.—Editor's note.

"I don't know exactly how the other millions of Americans feel," said Downs, "but from what I've seen in Europe during the past year I can only say that we should prepare our defenses to the utmost."

Three hundred eighty of the passengers were children under 10, and the ship, as on her last two voyages, resembled a floating nursery.

One was the 9-year-old son of British Information Minister Alfred Duff Cooper, going to stay with friends at Easthampton, Long Island.

Another was the 10-months-old son of Ernest Simpson, former husband of the Duchess of Windsor and his new wife, the former Mrs. Mary Raffray of Baltimore. The Simpsons are still in England.

Despite the addition of 600 passengers beyond the Washington's regular load, there were few complaints.

Another passenger was H. H Field of Shirley, Mass., a 1932 Harvard graduate who for more than a year worked for the British committee for refugees from Czechoslovakia.

To Dance or Keep House, Jessel Bride's Problem

LOS ANGELES, July 13 (AP)—Lois Andrews Jessel, 16-year-old dancer-wife of Comedian George Jessel, 43, is trying to make up her mind whether to settle down as a housewife or return to the stage.

Jessel and the New York show girl were married in Detroit April 14.

"I think I have worked enough already," Mrs. Jessel told reporters as she appeared in court yesterday with her husband, who is being sued by Edward Resnick, theatrical agent, for $3600 claimed due in fees. "But it all depends on how things turn out.

"I might settle down and raise a family, or I might go back to work next fall."

Asked if she cooked for Jessel, she replied:

"Oh, no. We are invited out all the time. But I do make some of my own clothes."

"She even made the red and white sports dress she is wearing," interposed Jessel. "It's the best one she has, because I didn't receive a bill for it."

Somebody remarked that the comedian hardly looked the part of a happy bridegroom.

"He always appears sad," Mrs. Jessel replied, "after cracking a joke."

The trial was recessed until Monday.

Malden Man Held For Polygamy as No. 2 Asks Divorce

Baring one of the strangest marital tangles in Middlesex County history, a Malden insurance agent was brought into court on a charge of polygamy today, after his alleged wife No. 2, a red-haired, attractive young Cambridge beauty shop employe, filed a petition for divorce.

LILLIAN A. MARSHALL
Polygamy Case Accuser

Apparently unaware that the man she believed her husband already had a first wife and child in a home only a few blocks from the one he allegedly shared with her, the second bride told her story before Judge Joseph W. Monahan in Middlesex Probate Court.

HELD IN $1000

Not satisfied with the evidence presented, the judge asked Malden police to investigate.

Result was the arrest of Frank E. Ryan, 28, of Highland ave., Malden.

He pleaded not guilty to the polygamy charge in Malden court today and was held in $1000 for a continued hearing July 27.

Through his counsel, Atty. James Mahr, he said he "never knew and never even heard of" the red-haired "second wife," the former Lillian W. Anderson of Cambridge.

1937 MARRIAGE CHARGED

According to police, Ryan married her at Derry, N. H., Feb. 28, 1937, using the name, Duane E. Marshall.

The ceremony was allegedly performed by W. H. Warren, justice of the peace.

Police say Ryan, alias Marshall, brought his bride No. 2 to Malden and installed her in a honeymoon nest in Pleasant st., only an easy walk from his alleged other home in Highland ave.

Upon Ryan's heated denial of the double marriage charge, police took him to confront pretty, red-haired "Mrs. Marshall" and she identified him as her supposed husband, investigating officers asserted.

RECORD OF 1932 MARRIAGE

"Mrs. Marshall" refused to comment on the case when she was interviewed today at the beauty shop where she works in Church st., Cambridge.

According to police, Ryan's Wife No. 1, the former Evelyn Perry, married him at Hampton, N. H., July 7, 1932. Both gave their ages then as 21. They obtained a waiver of the five-day law and the ceremony was performed by Charles P. Adams, justice of the peace, as the alleged record shows.

Police claim Ryan spent most of his nights at his home in Highland ave., but accounted for his absences from the side of his alleged bride No. 2 by telling her he was a musician and had to work nights.

By day, according to police, he lived out his role as faithful mate of his titian-haired second wife, until she finally grew suspicious and sought her freedom.

Police say Ryan is a former Malden high school football star.

Before entering the insurance business, as a Malden and Boston collector, he was a theater usher and an athletic instructor at the U. S. penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., according to investigating officers.

Priest Talks on Love to Fords

dissolve into the eternal rebirth of the love of God.

"That is why when you come to the altar this morning the church asks you: 'What guarantee will you give that you will love one another until death do you part?' If you answer, 'I will give the pledge of my word,' the church will answer, 'That is not enough, for pledges can be broken.'

"If you say, 'I will give the pledge of a ring,' the church will answer, 'That is not enough; rings can be lost, and with them the memory of the promise.'

"Only when you promise to stake your eternal salvation on your fidelity to one another will the church consent to unite you as man and wife. Your life thus becomes bonded at the foot of the altar, sealed with the seal of the cross and signed with the red sign of the Eucharist which you both received this morning.

"Secondly, your love, like Christ's love for the church, is sacrificial. Love does not mean to have, to own, to possess. It means to be had, to be owned, to be possessed. It is the giving of oneself to another.

"Thirdly, your love, like Christ's love for the Church on Pentecost, must be fruitful unto new love. Love has no better definition than mutual, self-giving which ends in self-recovery, for that is what is in the Trinity. Mutual self-giving which is the sacrificial element in love needs the complement of self-recovery by which love obeys the creative command:

" 'I increase and multiply.'

"May you live long and happily."

Man With Willkie Color Sought As Roosevelt Running Mate

FIRE VET PROMOTED

SEEKS STATE POST—Taking out nomination papers at the Secretary of State's office, Division of Elections, Owen A. Gallagher, former state senator and now Boston street commissioner, announces his candidacy for lieutenant-governor. He is a practicing attorney, and has served three terms in the House of Representatives.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 13 (INS)—A widening move to choose a "more colorful figure" than Secretary of State Hull to be President Roosevelt's running-mate on the third term venture today spread among Democratic delegates to create the major interest in pre-convention debates.

Conceding the President's acceptance of a third term nomination, both New Dealers and regular Democrats are talking of giving the vice-presidential role to a man "who can match Wendell Willkie in color." It is the first sign of campaign weakness to develop in pre-convention circles.

Secretary Hull was reported to be the President's own personal choice for the second-place nomination. But his advisers here are frowning on Hull and are aided by rumors that Hull will turn down the nomination if it is offered him.

WIDE-OPEN RACE

So at the moment the vice-presidential race appears wide open.

This development even overshadowed the arrival of inner circle New Dealers to take command of the convention. They are led by Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, whose lieutenants are Atty.-Gen. Robert H. Jackson, Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes and Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina. They have pushed Postmaster-General James A. Farley slightly into the background as the convention boss.

The Hopkins brigade immediately launched two campaigns. First, they began sounding out leaders on whether President Roosevelt should condition his acceptance on a third term nomination on a promise to serve only two years or until the crisis in Europe ends. They received an unfavorable reaction to this political balloon.

The desire to keep Farley is no mild one among New Dealers. Emphasis was laid on their maneuver when it was further disclosed that there is no agreement and indeed considerable disagreement among them over the naming of a successor to Farley if he does retire.

Frank C. Walker, New York attorney and friend of the President, was reported yesterday to be a sure choice for the chairmanship, if Farley quits. Today, Walker is being ruled out as lacking the color and ability needed to conduct a third term campaign. Edward J. Flynn, New York's Secretary of State, is the new favorite though a mild one.

Democratic leaders, who are members of the American Legion, are demanding the nomination of a World War veteran for the vice-presidency to offset Wendell Willkie's war record.

LUCAS MENTIONED

The Legionnaires are offering several names, including Illinois Sen. Scott W. Lucas, who rose from private to lieutenant in the A.E.F.; Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana, an over-seas veteran who became national commander of the American Legion, and Sen. Bennett Clark, of Missouri, who helped organize the Legion.

The Hopkins strategists, however, favor Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas of Washington or Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace of Iowa.

There are two points of doubt in this convention, aside from the Vice-Presidency. They are:

1—Whether the President will send a message to the convention before the balloting begins on the presidential nomination.

2—How many candidates will have their names placed before the convention.

BAY STATE DELEGATES SPLIT ON WAY WEST

A record-breaking Massachusetts delegation gathered today at North Station to board the special train which carries it to Chicago for the national Democratic convention.

Made up of more than 200 delegates, alternates and partisans, the convention group was said to be the largest that ever went from this state.

And from the standpoint of interest, too history probably was being made. For, the official delegates were no more certain of President Roosevelt's third term intentions than was the man in the street.

Consequently, their discussions and speculations on the train mostly centered about 1940's biggest question which will be answered in Chicago next week.

Officially, there were 144 delegates and alternates with total voting strength of 34.

For the most part, the delegates are pledged to Postmaster-General James A. Farley. Two notable opponents to a third term for the President were former Governor Joseph B. Ely and Atty. Joseph Scolponeti.

Sen. David I. Walsh, Cong. John W. McCormack and other leaders will greet the state delegation when it arrives at Chicago tomorrow at 8:40 a. m. (CST).

Ely said he would not leave until Sunday or Monday, but declared he would be there in time to express his third term opposition.

The Democrats sought widespread representation through their election April 30. The election provided for 12 delegates and an equal number of alternates-at-large with 60 delegates and a like number of alternates from the state's 15 congressional districts.

In the convention, each state is allowed four votes at large and two from each Congressional district. Thus, each delegate-at-large from this state will be entitled to only one-third of a vote and each district delegate will have one-half a vote in the choice of party candidates.

Special Train to Bid Trolleys Adieu

A farewell trip will be made tomorrow in the old-style trolleys which are being scrapped. Members and friends of the Hub Chapter, National Railway Historical Society, will tour the surface lines of the Boston Elevated in a special trolley train, William V. Kenney, secretary, announced.

The trip, which will last six hours, will start at the Eagle st. carhouse, East Boston, at 8:15 a. m., and will pick up additional passengers at Park st. subway station at 9 a. m.

WILLKIE OUTLINES 3-POINT PROGRAM

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 13 (INS)—Although Wendell L. Willkie planned to open formally his presidential campaign with his acceptance speech in Elwood, Indiana, he appeared today to have started it here with the stating of a three-point program which he would follow if elected President.

That program was outlined at Denver where thousands of persons lined the state capitol steps and in a packed hotel lobby to be one of the 2500 to shake Willkie's hand.

"I dedicate myself to three things," the nominee said.

"1—A united people destroying class conscious distinction of class hatred.

"2—Rehabilitation of our national economic life.

"3—The building of an adequate defense program."

STRESSES POINTS

The stress which he placed on the three points indicated that they will form the working basis of his acceptance speech.

"Our very way of life, our democratic system is at one of the testing points in our history," he said. "We are facing the most ferocious assault, physically, psychologically and ideologically, that we have faced in all our long history.

"The unity of our people, the rehabilitation of our economic life and the building of an adequate defense are indispensable to the preservation of our way of life.

"Have no delusion that the rehabilitation of our economic life is not as important or even more important, than a defense program. If we make our economic life vibrant and vital and have a united people, no dictator or totalitarian ruler will ever strike at this country."

Without specific reference to them, it might be said that his three points generally covered the groundwork of such probable issues as capital and labor relations under the New Deal, government regulation of industry, business and finance, and military and naval preparedness.

The trip to Denver was by automobile with stops at Littleton and Englewood where residents demanded—and got—a speech.

STRENUOUS VACATION

"I am on vacation but it is proving to be a very strenuous vacation," Willkie told them.

Mrs. Willkie accepted flowers from admirers in both towns, voicing her thanks in a small voice and fleeing for the hired automobile when a microphone was pushed at her.

Tiny and shy, she scores heavily with the crowds.

The return trip to Colorado Springs was made by plane and the Willkies went immediately to their suite for a quiet dinner without guests and a bit of reading before turning in for the night.

Today Mrs. Ruth Hanna Simms was down for a visit with the candidate. A pre-nomination backer of New York's Thomas E. Dewey, she has been brought into the picture partly through the efforts of Gov. Ralph Carr of Colorado and partly through her own decision and that of other Dewey supporters to give every aid to the party nominee.

10,000 Home Guard Planned for State

Plans for the recruiting of nearly 10,000 men and officers for the establishment of a proposed home guard in Massachusetts, providing the federal government mobilizes the 26th Division, were underway at the State House today.

For the first time since the State House began to close Saturdays, during the summer months, employes of Adjutant-General Edgar C. Erickson's office were ordered to work in an effort to get basic plans for the contemplated home guard organization established.

Under direction of Adjt.-Gen. Erickson, letters were being sent out from the State House to all retired and former officers of the National Guard asking their cooperation in forming the new military group.

While the machinery was being set up at the State House, Adjt.-Gen. Erickson was at the Bourne National Guard camp making preparations for the opening of the new officers' military school about July 28.

Outlining the tentative plans for the new organization, Adjt.-Gen Erickson at the Bourne camp today said:

"If the federal government decides to mobilize the Massachusetts National Guard forces, a home guard organization will be put into effect immediately to assume the functions of the National Guard.

"It has been proposed to recruit nearly 10,000 men and officers between ages of 18 and 21 and 35 to 55.

"General Erland Fish, retired, is en route to Boston via plane from the West Coast and is expected to confer with me at the State House Monday, regarding his assuming command of the home guard unit.

"General Fish has already assured Governor Saltonstall that he would accept the new command."

NEW TEACHER NEEDED

Commenting on the new officer's school which will be located at Bourne for a two-week period, Adjutant General Erickson said that because of the streamlining of the army and changes in manual of arms and new orders, it would require additional training of officers who might come out of retirement to join the proposed organization.

"During the past five years considerable change has taken place in army circles and it will mean teaching 'old horses' new tricks," declared Erickson.

GOVERNMENT TO AID

Gov. Saltonstall has already given assurance that he will call a special session of the Legislature to appropriate funds for a state guard.

Some of the plans being handled by Col. Porter B. Chase, assistant to the adjutant general, were revealed today. They included:

Headquarters for the home guards at 347 Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, present quarters of the headquarters staff of the M. N. G.

Six infantry regiments, one motor corps, one medical battalion, quartermaster's regiment and a troop of cavalry.

A unit of home guards and drills under direction of selected company commanders one or two evenings a week.

Uniforms and equipment for the defense guard will be supplied by the state under present plans. It is hoped, however, by the Adjutant-General's office that War Department might assist in the financing or furnishing of uniforms and equipment.

mobilizing the entire guard "immediately" for training.

Congress will be asked to grant the President the partial mobilization authority as soon as it reconvenes July 22. Under existing law, the President can call out the guard only to meet a threatened invasion or to deal with insurrection or disorder.

The House already has pending a bill which would empower the chief executive to use the guard under other defense circumstances. This was introduced after he requested such authority in his May 31 message and, although the House military committee recommended its passage June 10, no move has been made to call it up for a vote.

Next to the National Guard mobilization proposal, the following defense developments attracted attention yesterday:

The War Department announced plans for creation of a ninth "streamlined" division, with headquarters at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The defense commission disclosed that directors of the Packard Moto. Co. had approved "general arrangements" on a contract for the manufacture of 9000 Rolls Royce airplane engines—3000 for the United States and 6000 for Great Britain.

The duPont Powder Co. and the War Department were reported to have agreed upon construction of a $30,000,000 smokeless spowder plant at Louisville, Ky. With a daily output of 200,000 pounds planned, the plant would double the nation's entire existing powder output.

BRITAIN GIVES IN ON JAP ISSUE

TOKYO, July 13 (AP)—Reliable sources reported today Great Britain has agreed to ban shipment of war materials—including munitions and gasoline—to China over the Burma road, in response to a Japanese demand which previously had been rejected.

This represented a compromise, these sources said, the British declining to prohibit shipment of "all foods and materials" over the route, as Japan had demanded.

The reported agreement came after a two-hour conference yesterday between British Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie and Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, after the ambassador received new instructions from London.

In London it was reported Sir Robert was authorized to offer to close the Burma route for two months during negotiations with Japan over the issue.

Vernon Bartlett, commentator for News-Chronicle, asserting the rainy season would hamper traffic in Burma for three months, anyway, expressed belief Britain would "take any action which Americans are prepared to take."—Editor's note.

War-Riddled Europe Facing Starvation

WASHINGTON, July 13 (INS)—War-ridden Europe today confronted two winters of hunger, with 35,000,000 facing actual starvation and some 70,000,000 others depending on the "crumbs" falling from Germany's table.

In addition, according to reports reaching Washington, approximately 150,000,000 face rationing of food that ultimately may wreak a costly toll on the aged, and young, since the armies of the axis-powers get first call on food supplies.

Conditions in Poland were already reported to be appalling. Hunger is rampant, and officials of the foreign bureau of the U. S. Department of Commerce said that they hated to think of the coming winter.

Officials declared that food supplies in Poland, with a population of 35,000,000, were greatly inadequate. Louis Domaretsky, the bureau's chief economic analyst, said:

"We may never know the tragic toll that is taken during the coming winter in Poland. Part of the country is held by Germany, part by Russia, and food supplies are known to be insufficient for the native population. But no definite reports of conditions are allowed to reach the outer world, and if famine results the true story may never be told."

The 69,000,000 people in Finland, Holland, Denmark, Belgium and France will be forced, it was said, to depend on Germany—even for the crops grown in those countries. Italy's 45,000,000 also will face hunger unless Germany, her axis partner, ships food supplies in that country.

Germany was reported to have sufficient stores to last through the winter, but is lacking in meat reserves. It was said that the Nazis were forcing the Low Countries to slaughter their livestock to make up for the meat deficiencies in Germany.

"Practice Blitz" Gets Nazis Set

what they were expected to do that the actual performance was almost automatic.

The Allies, on the other hand, may have been lulled into a sense of false security. They may have forgotten that during those comparative quiet months, Czech fortifications in the Sudetenland, built on the principles of France's Maginot Line, and in German hands after the Munich pact, were being used as targets until it was learned what type weapon could pierce even the seemingly invincible French and Belgian fortifications.

Since the close of the Norwegian campaign it has become common knowledge that for weeks before the invasion German troops practiced getting off boats and into immediate action.

Similarly, since the close of the western offensive, it is known about the capture of th eBelgian fortress Eben Emael that an exact replica was built in northern Germany, and that parachute troops descended on that replica in 30 practice raids, hurling thermite mombs at the big guns and steel-lined embrasures and capturing the "astonished" garrison.

It also is known that Hitler, before issuing orders for the western offensive, had special weapons designed—such as the so-called "Bunker cannon"—to meet the particular situation created by the existence in France of the Maginot line.

One hears now on all sides that special weapons also have been constructed and special modes of attack have been practiced for the planned invasion of the British Isles.

Hitler to Die At Girl's Hand, Stars Decree

HOLLYWOOD, July 13 (INS)—The west coast Association of Astrologers, in convention in Hollywood, doesn't see much hope for Adolf Hitler.

In fact, the astrologers issued a rather startling report on the German leader today.

"Hitler has only six days of his 'Timetable of Conquest' left. Next Friday the tide will begin to turn against him, leading him eventually to a violent death through intrigue, probably at the hands of a woman," the astrologists reported.

"The lunation, or new moon, will overshadow Hitler's Saturn, and his star will begin to be blotted out," explained Edna L. Scott, the organization's treasurer.

was slight and casualties apparently were few.

British authorities, summing up the results of daily German air raids during the last week, said that Nazi attempts to blockade Britain by air attacks on ports and shipping had so far failed.

Damage inflicted on shipping was described as small, while the Germans were estimated to have lost more than $4,000,000 worth of aircraft in the last seven days.

The British air force, meanwhile, was reported continuing its assaults on German munitions work, airdromes and other objectives. The Air Ministry announced last night the loss of three planes in the latest of these raids.

Approximately 1200 offices in England, Scotland and Wales were opened to facilitate the registration of the men called to arms today.

Under the new mobilization program one class is being registered each week. The next class will be called July 20 and another July 27.

A large number of the men being registered are immediately exempted from military service because they are employed in "reserved" occupations listed by the government as esesntial to the nation's war effort.

The reserved list includes men in more than 1000 trades, including accountants, miners, steam-roller drivers, watch adjusters, radio engineers, dock laborers, etc.

The Ministry of Information announced officially last night that the scheduled removal of British children to places of safety in the dominions and the United States had been "postponed."

In explanation, the announcement said that "owing to the great demands now made upon the Admiralty there are not sufficient naval vessels available for convoy duty."

However, the government made clear that "children sent apart from the government's scheme will be allowed to leave either at their parents' risk or at the risk of voluntary associations which have arranged for their transport."

WAR CHILDREN CONTINUE TO ARRIVE; MORE HOMES NEEDED

War orphans in need of homes are still arriving in this country and will continue to do so despite the latest announcement of the British government.

So it was announced today by Marshall Field, chairman of the National Child Refugee Committee at New York, who referred to the British statement that scheduled removal of children from England to this country had been postponed.

"Postponement is not abandonment," said Field. The committee, he added, would be kept intact so that it may be available for any further change or emergency which may arise.

Many children will still arrive through ordinary channels, and all efforts will be made to make this number as large as possible, Field stated.

New England already has answered the pitiful cries with thousands of pledges to adopt the children or furnish homes for the duration of the war.

However, the good cause is far from served in full. Thousands of youngsters remain to be cared for. So rite a letter to the Editor of the Boston Evening American now and advise if it is possible for you to join up in this humane service in the name of humanity.

Here are a few excerpts from letters received by the editor from New Englanders who have opened up their hearts and homes for the young unfortunates of war:

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"We haven't any children of our own but we both love them and somebody's little girl or boy would brighten our home. We are Americans of Scotch-Irish descent. My husband is a school teacher. I hope we will get a chance to do something for God's children."

LAWRENCE—"I was an orphan and I had a very hard life, being brought up with people who made me a slave. For some time I have had it in mind to adopt a little boy, around four, and bring him up the way I should have been had my parents lived. I would like a British boy I can bring up to be an honorable man and a desirable citizen."

DRACUT—"We are a childless couple, dearly love children, and if we are fortunate enough through your efforts, we would like to adopt a little boy and little girl. Any child entrusted to our care would receive love and kindliness. We live in country and have an ideal place in which to raise children."

WAR ORPHAN

U. S. Home Awaits Her

METHUEN—"My wife and I have been reading with deep concern the accounts of the tragic plight of those poor, innocent little victims. If we could effect the adoption of one of these youngsters we would provide a good home and proper upbringing. I am steadily employed and am well able to give a youngster everything he needs."

REVERE—"I would like a child to adopt. We have no children and could give one every attention. I would like a little girl three or four years old from France or England. We have been married 15 years and my husband is very fond of children."

FALL RIVER—"I have been reading in your paper about the war babies and think the best things we Americans could do to help Europe is to give their babies a chance to live. My wife and I would very much like to get a French orphan. I assure you we will love him as our very own."

PLYMOUTH—"Your stories interest me greatly. If I can help these war orphans, thousands of whom are bound to be killed unless we Americans take them, I am willing to take a girl around 11 for adoption. I would like an English girl. I have a daughter now who is nearing 12.

WALPOLE—"We are one of New England's childless couples and would dearly love one of Europe's little war orphans. We have long prayed for a child of our own and your articles seem like the answer to our prayers. We have a good home, my husband has a steady job and we are conveniently located to schools."

CELEBRATION — As the Pepsi-Cola bottling company opens its new $350,000 plant at 700 Soldiers Field rd., officials have dinner at the new plant, l. to r., Walter S. Meck, Jr., president of Pepsi-Cola; Lieut.-Gov. Horace Cahill, and Lou C. Dillon, vice-president.

After a gala dinner celebration, attended by Mayor Tobin and more than 400 members of the bottling industry, the Pepsicola Co.'s new $350,000 plant in Soldiers Field rd., Brighton, was in full-time operation today.

The new industry was formally welcomed to Boston by the mayor. Walter S. Mack, Jr., president of the Pepsicola Co., and Lou C. Dillon, vice-president, came from New York to attend the banquet.

The new plant has a production capacity of 100,000 bottles a day. It employs more than 50 Boston workers.

New Car Lamp Preview Friday

Leading distributors and dealers of auto accessories, public officials and others will attend a pre-view Friday night at the Statler Hotel, Boston, where "glasseal" roadlights using the new all-glass G-E driving and passing lamps for pre-1940 cars will be officially introduced.

H. F. Barnes

Key speaker on the program arranged by C. C. Walker, manager of General Electric Lamp Department's New England Division, will be H. Freeman Barnes, sales promotion manager from department headquarters at Nela Park, Cleveland.

The all-glass auxiliary lamps are G. E.'s answer to a growing demand by owners of pre-1940 cars and trucks for sealed beam headlighting. Just how any or all of the 30,000,000 of such vehicles can have their headlighting tripled and properly aimed will be revealed by a revolutionary type of sound-slide film.

STOCKHOLM, July 13 (AP)—The Scandinavian wireless announced today that Sigrid Undset, the novelist, who fled Norway after the German invasion, would leave Stockholm Saturday for the United States to take up residence. One of her three sons fell in the fighting in Norway.

Defense Program May End Labor War

WASHINGTON, July 13 (INS)—The White House today declared that the national defense program "holds out hope" that the 10,000,000 workers in organized labor may be brought into one camp.

The White House, reviving hopes for resumption of President Roosevelt's labor peace conferences, was inspired to make the comment when all branches of labor—the A. F. of L., the CIO, and the Railroad Brotherhoods—pledged President Roosevelt united support in fulfillment of the national defense program.

Immediately, the White House said:

"The pledge holds out a hope that national defense may be the means of bringing labor together."

The pledge came from the labor policy advisory committee to the National Defense Commission, composed of 16 labor leaders representing about equally the three major labor factions, which have an estimated total members of 10,000,000.

The pledge, transmitted by Sidney Hillman, labor member of the National Defense Council, said:

"We . . . wish to pledge to you, Mr. President, as head of our great nation, our full and unstinted devotion to our country, and to the program of national defense. We and our membership are united in our effort and determination to give effective and expeditious co-operation in the fulfillment of the defense program, and to contribute to a free and secure democracy.

"We are confident that with the extension of such co-operation among all groups, this great nation will become increasingly more worthy of the principles upon which it was founded."

New Immigration Offices Opened

The immigration and naturalization service offices have been moved from the tenth floor of the Federal building to three offices in the 15th floor, John F. Mulcahy, district director, said today.

This is a result of a rush of visitors to Canada this summer. The number of aliens seeking reentry permits for their return to this country after a visit to Canada has been so great that the immigration service has been forced to triple its staff.

This Week's Tasks

By T. W. LEGGETT

Keep newly planted trees and shrubs well watered, wetting the foliage as well as the soil over the roots.

Iris can be dug, divided, the foliage cut down and the stock replanted.

Keep cultivating to keep down weeds and the loose surface forms a mulch which tends to hold needed moisture in the soil.

* * *

Cut back delphiniums when they are through flowering. That prevents seeding and may result in Autumn bloom.

* * *

Continue frequent spraying of roses to control insects and disease.

Cut off spent flower heads of annuals and perennials to prevent development of seeds, thus prolonging the season of bloom. Cut off the faded flowers of roses.

Water fuchsias daily and keep them in partial shade.

* * *

Brussels sprouts, cabbage and cauliflower plants can be set out.

* * *

For red spiders on evergreens spray with volck.

Do not permit perennial phlox to go to seed.

PAUL MUNI, who is at odds with Warners over "High Sierra," according to Louella O. Parsons' Hollywood column today. Paul is fighting against portraying a gangster's role.

Western Epic At Trans-Lux

By DON WARD

In "Wagons Westward," first-run feature at the Trans-Lux, the prairie drama fans will find a good deal of their favorite settings and costumes, a typical melodrama plot jammed with red-blooded action and topped off with love's old sweet song—all this plus some excellent acting, especially on the part of Chester Morris, who heads the cast in this Republic production.

Morris has the dual role of David and Tom Cook, twin brothers who go different ways. Dave is proud of his widowed mother's protector and also an officer of the law. Tom turns into one of those wild Westerners whose best argument is a gun and who doesn't hesitate to shoot his sweetheart. The poor girl has mistaken Dave for Tom and the bad man flies into a jealous rage. He goes gunning for Dave, too. But Uncle Hardtack, played by comic "Gabby" Hayes, proves the fastest shooter this time and after that there is nothing left to do except marry hero Dave off to the poor murdered girl's sister.

Anita Louise and Ona Munson have the sister roles—both entertainers in a frontier saloon. "Big Boy" Williams and Douglas Fowley are desperadoes, chums of wicked Tom.

That famous old comedy, "If I Had a Million," with a dozen stars, is also at the Trans-Lux.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 13—All is not hunkydory between Paul Muni and Warners at this moment because Paul has refused to play in "High Sierra" and Warners are insisting that this be his next picture.

Whether or not he will be suspended will be decided next week. He says the story of "High Sierra," A. W. Burnett thriller, is all he could ask but he does not feel a gangster role is right for him.

Warners on the other hand want a complete departure from the pictures he made a few years ago. They believe because "Key Largo," his stage play, was not as successful as it might have been he needs a smash hit to re-establish him.

If the gags in their new picture, "Gone West," aren't surefire the most surprised pair in Hollywood will be Lynne Carver and Lee Bowman. For the past eight weeks Lynne and Lee have been trying out the movie material on the dog, which means, if you'll pardon my slang, playing the skit on the road.

So many comedies die on the vine because they are amusing in the printed word but they fail to click when spoken. So when "Gone West" goes into production next week with Eddie Buzzell directing it will be interesting to see how their little experiment works out.

Most producers would be crying themselves into a nervous breakdown over a picture costing $2,700,000 but Darryl Zanuck is just taking "Brigham Young" in stride. Well, maybe Darryl has some secret formula for geting the cash customers to the box office because "Lillian Russell" cost plenty, too, and it is cleaning up.

Instead of being downhearted over his costly Mormon epic, Zanuck is opening the purse strings for plenty of excitement on Labor Day when the film with Ty Power, Linda Darnell and Dean Jagger opens simultaneously in 10 cities—with the big hurrah in Salt Lake City, heart of the Mormon faith, and a special celebration in Cincinnati, Ty's birthplace.

MET 'ALL THIS, AND HEAVEN TOO' EXCELS IN EVERY WAY

Bette Heads Sterling Cast

By PEGGY DOYLE

Rachel Fields' tragic story of frustrated love . . . the best-selling "All This, and Heaven, Too" . . . has come to the screen under Warner Brothers' auspices and Met audiences are finding it absorbing, heart-rocking entertainment.

Bette Davis, as Mlle. Henriette Deluzy-Desportes, the gentle, little governess who became innocently involved in a scandal that eventually toppled King Louis Phillipe from his throne, and Charles Boyer, as the Duc de Praslin whose love for her grows out of their mutual love for his children, give standout performances.

This now very familiar story . . . for nearly as many people have read it as have read "Gone With the Wind" . . . should find as many film as it did reader fans. Although Warners have telescoped the story into the years encompassing the governess' service in the de Praslin household, supplemented by a prologue and epilogue set in America, the film takes two hours and 20 minutes in the telling. But so expertly is the story projected that there is no conscio sness of its length when the final sequence discovers Henriette and Henry Field, the young minister who betriended her, framed in a window as they contemplate the falling snow and a future of contentment together.

It was the insane jealousy felt by the strikingly beautiful and obviously neurotic Duchesse de Praslin toward the mild, prim governess whose tender care brought a measure of peace for the first time to this unhappy, restless domicile that spawned one of the world's most celebrated trials.

Miss Davis has rarely given a finer performance than as the governess, whom she makes entirely plausible and genuinely appealing as the woman who has been tried and found guilty in the court of public opinion of invading a woman's home and stealing her husband's love although she has never actually heard a word of love from him.

Boyer, too, is at his best as the nobleman made unhappy by his wife's unreasonable tantrums and their possible effect upon their keenly sensitive young children.

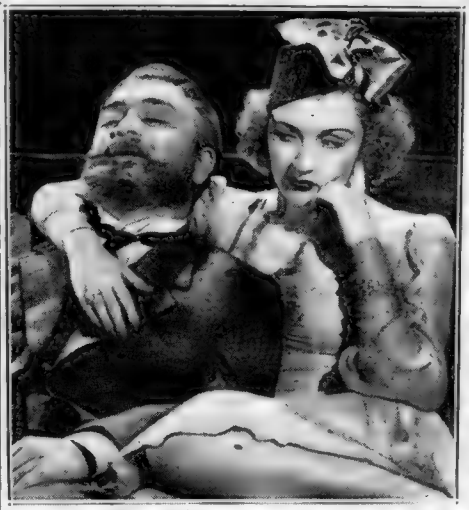
The children—Jane Lockhart, Virginia Weidler, Ann Todd and Richard Nichols—give beautifully, right and Jeffrey Lynn, Henry Field has a nice sincerity.

Altogether "All This, and Heaven, Too" is a distinguished achievement, handsomely produced, brilliantly acted and retaining to a remarkable degree the quality of the period. This is the 1840's. Nor should Casey Robinson's fine script be overlooked.

On the same bill is "Pop Always Pays," an RKO Radio picture with Leon Errol, Walter Catlett, Dennis O'Keefe and Marjorie Gateson.



AKIM TAMIROFF finds bliss in the arms of Muriel Angelis in this scene from "The Way of All Flesh," coming next Thursday to the Paramount and Fenway.

Gladys George Finally Won Stardom 'the Hard Way'

It might well be said, in the idiom of present-day America, that Gladys George, who, with Akim Tamiroff, William Henry and Muriel Angelus, is featured in the Paramount picture, "The Way of All Flesh," which opens on the Paramount and Fenway screens on Thursday, attained her present enviable position in the Land of Make-Believe "the hard way."

At the time of her birth, Miss George's parents were on tour and for three years she traveled with them, and made her stage debut in Waterbury, Ct., as Little Tommy in "Back Among the Old Folks." During the next five years she portrayed every child role in the wide repertoire of the stock company with which her parents were affiliated.

Her first star billing came in a vaudeville act, but it was not until she was 15 that she made her first appearance on Broadway in "The Betrothal," with Isadora Duncan, later going on tour with the Coburn in "The Better Ole." Playing in Los Angeles she was seen Thomas H. Ince who immedia signed her for the silent scr but several months spent in a hospital prevented her from starting her film career at that time.

Awaiting the opening of stock she worked as clothes model, sold candy, pinch-hit as a chambermaid and eked out a living in various other ways until she eventually secured a role on Broadway in "Queer People," with Ethel Shannon, followed by a role in "The Valley Way," which led to her contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to star in "Straight Is the Way." Came Brock Pemberton's Broadway stage hit, "Personal Appearance," in which she was starred. And then, Hollywood called—but loudly.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

IT WILL BE "heads or the "bang-tails" when North Shore socialites begin flipping coins to decide whether to go to Christ Church Fair or Suffolk Downs next Wednesday afternoon . . .

Christ Church Fair in Hamilton is an annual event which most of the prominent shoreites have operated and attended since they were children . . . yet a great many of these same people are ardent horse fans, and the $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap, the biggest race of the season, will be run at Suffolk the same afternoon.

So a flurry of coin flipping and discussions of pros and cons is inevitable . . .

Celebrities of the horse racing world will be at Suffolk, where they hope to see their colors ride to victory . . . Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Nedayr will be among the 15 starters in the big race, together with Fighting Fox, last year's surprise winner; the William Branns' Challedon, this year's favorite, and Eight Thirty, flying the colors of George E. Widener of the famous Philadelphia horse-racing family . . .

Anything can happen in a handicap, but Mr. and Mrs. Brann have high hopes that Challedon will make track history on the 17th after watching him win the special no-bet race which was run the other day as a "tightener" for the big event . . .

Entertain at Paddock Club

MRS. BRANN smilingly acknowledged congratulations in one of those good-looking ensembles which attract attention when the wearer is called into the winners' circle . . . a tailored lavender silk, topped by a wide-brimmed deep purple straw hat, and a rich jade bracelet for contrast . . . Col. Edward Bradley, famous Kentucky horseman and owner of Bimelech, watched the special no-bet race with as much breathless interest as though thousands had been wagered . . .

Mrs. Adnah Nyehart, who seldom misses a day at the track, studied her program in a gray and white printed silk, with white ric rac edging the veil on her white straw hat . . . Another faithful fan, Mrs. Edmund S. Childs, wore a green and beige ensemble, with a red arrow in her green felt hat . . . The V. C. Bruce Wetmores, who will be entertaining at the Paddock Club next Wednesday, were at the pre-view of the big race also . . . Mr. Wetmore entering into the spirit of the occasion with a big cluster of bachelor buttons in his lapel, and Mrs. Wetmore in a navy and powder blue ensemble which blended with the parasol under which she sat on the terrace after luncheon to pick her winners . . .

Richard Ely Danielson, the Paddock Club's first president, was accompanied by his post deb daughter, Marion, who watched from the Paddock Club terrace, as did Justin Griess of Hamilton, a new member this season . . .

Enrolls at Harvard Summer School

WHEN ELISE SMITHWICK finds time to loll on the sands of the Bass Rocks Beach Club she usually has her nose in a book . . . not a modern best seller, but a bit of popular fiction of the Gay Nineties or the early 20th century . . . Not content with the usual society girl's type of summer, Elise has enrolled at Harvard Summer School in a course on "fiction since 1890," which requires a lot of outside reading . . .

Compton Sargent of West Manchester is taking the same course and is her attentive escort to and from classes every day at noon . . . Compton's mother is Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent . . . better known as Mary Sargent in the theatrical world, where she has received much acclaim as an actress . . .

Margaret's brother, Tudor, went with her to attend the festivities . . . Their father is William Tudor Gardiner of Boston, Prides Crossing and Wiscasset, Me., a former Governor of the Pine Tree State . . . Their mother, tall and distinctive, with snowy white hair and a beautiful array of costumes, is one of Boston's most handsome and socially prominent women . . .

VIRGINIA PROUT of Chestnut Hill is enjoying a couple of weeks of strenuous partying out in Lake Geneva, Illinois, where she is visiting her Sarah Lawrence classmate, Dorothy Warner . . . Dorothy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rawleigh Warner, have a houseful of young guests, friends of their three daughters and several sons, so there's something doing every minute of Ginny's visit . . .

ELIZABETH JENNEY of Brookline, left, and Julia Bolton of Cleveland have been having a merry summer exchanging visits at each other's homes. Elizabeth has just returned from Julia's in time to repack her bags for a trip to Jasper National Park with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Jenney. Julia came out in Boston last winter under the wing of her aunt, Mrs. Samuel Mixter.

The spacious lawns of Christ Church, Hamilton, will provide a sylvan setting for the colorful booths of flowers, vegetables, and all the games of chance for the annual summer fair Wednesday.

The fair proper will end at six and any articles left over will be taken to Community House to be auctioned off by Bobby Cutler at the cabaret and supper which will wind up the day's activities.

Anne Ayer On Trip West

Temporarily forsaking the bridle paths of the North Shore where they are almost daily riders, Anne Ayer and her brother, Frederick Ayer, Jr., of South Hamilton, are leaving early next week for a sojourn in California.

Anne, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer, recently became engaged to Edward MacNichol, Jr., of Wenham, a member of next year's graduating class at Princeton. She rides to hounds at the Myopia Hunt Club and is one of the shore's most accomplished feminine polo players.

Accompanying them on the trip is Miss Anne Moody.

RANDS, LOCKWOODS AT THE CONTINENTAL

Prof. and Mrs. H. W. Rand of Belmont are staying at the Hotel Continental in Cambridge where they are entertaining Miss Augusta Rand from Oil City, Pa. Lt. Commander Frederick Lockwood, of East Orange, N. J., an official of the U. S. Coast Guard, and Mrs. Lockwood, are spending the summer season at the Continental.

Maybe it isn't cricket to give a lady's age, but Mrs. John Roosevelt (Ann Clark) who recently presented the President with another grandson, is still young enough not to hide the fact that she had 23 candles on her birthday cake today.

Cooking

That One Hot Dish a Meal

By MARTHA LEE

AROUND this time of year we hear a lot about having "one hot dish" at each meal.

And of course we know this is a good practise because, although the weather temperature may soar to great heights, the temperature of our "innards" remains unchanged. Therefore, eating all cold foods keeps our systems chilled and frequently results in fatigue and loss of appetite.

However one hot food is stimulating, renews the energy and, by way of contrast, makes cold meals more palatable.

One good way of introducing a hot food into summer meals is serving hot breads. Muffins and biscuits, for instance, are easy to make and will not heat the kitchen too much because the baking time is short

PLAIN MUFFINS

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp salt
2 tbsp. sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup milk
2 tbsp. shortening, melted

Mix and sift ingredients. Combine well-beaten egg and milk, and stir into dry ingredients. Stir in shortening. Bake in greased muffin pans in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 18 small or 12 medium muffins.

VARIATIONS

Fruit Muffins: Add ½ cup raisins or sliced dates, figs, or prunes to sifted dry ingredients.

Nut Muffins: Add ½ cup chopped nut meats to sifted dry ingredients.

Whole-Wheat Muffins: Substitute ¾ cup whole-wheat flour for 1 cup white flour, adding the whole-wheat flour without sifting to the sifted dry ingredients.

CORN MUFFINS

¾ cup yellow cornmeal
1 cup sifted flour
4 tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
4 tbsp. sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup milk
3 tbsp. shortening, melted

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine well-beaten egg and milk, and add to dry ingredients. Stir in shortening. Bake in greased muffin pans in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Or bake in iron corn-stick pans, which have been heated before they are greased. Makes 18 small or 12 medium muffins or corn sticks.

CHEESE BISCUITS

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
4 tbsp. shortening
½ cup grated cheese
¾ cup milk (about)

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening and cheese with pastry blender or with 2 knives until the consistency of coarse cornmeal. Stir in milk to make a smooth dough. Turn out on slightly floured board, knead ½ minute and roll lightly to thickness of ½ inch. Cut in 2-inch rounds with floured cutter. Bake on ungreased sheet in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 14 to 16 biscuits.

BUCKET

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar
1-3 cup shortening
2 eggs, well beaten
1-3 cup rich milk

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or 2 knives. Combine well-beaten eggs and milk and stir into flour mixture. Turn out on lightly floured board, and roll lightly to ½-inch thickness. Cut into diamond shapes or 2-inch rounds. Arrange on ungreased baking sheet, brush with unbeaten egg white or melted shortening, and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Makes 16 scones.

Smart Set Fashions

Jungle Jewelry Is New

NOW that everyone you know who travels goes south to the Caribbees or west toward Hawaii, you can undoubtedly commission one of your friends to bring back some of the polished seed and nut jewelry that can be picked up in exotic spots for a mere matter of pennies. They're wonderful with a turban to accent the simplest of summer frocks, like this set worn by Dorothy Lovett. Hers is a rather spectacular affair, mixing polished brown mahogany "teeth" with the seeds . . . but you can have some equally striking. Many of the seeds are dipped in pastel colors; we've seen several long strings of seeds from Haiti, tinted a wonderful turquoise blue. And if you can't wait that long for your imported set, the Boston shops have plenty of their own imports on hand right now.—ANNICE BRINK.

Love and Marriage

Stopped Speaking to Parents

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My 18-year-old daughter is causing us a real problem just now. When in high school she had a boy friend who came to the house for more than a year, and my husband and I liked him.

Then one evening our daughter had a date with another boy, and this first boy parked in front of the house until my husband ordered him to stop spying and he promised to go home.

Now my husband has forbidden her to see him any more, and won't allow her to talk to him, although he keeps on calling on the phone, and is very annoying.

She won't speak to us at all since this happened. We would be thankful to you, Miss Fairfax, if you could tell us the right thing to do about this matter. A MOTHER.

To my way of thinking you are making too much of the "puppy-love" case of this youth of 19 and your daughter. There is nothing like opposition for making a passing love affair serious. To have aroused your daughter's antagonism to the point where she refuses to speak to you is unfortunate. If I were dealing with such an affair, I'd try to laugh it off.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a soldier in the United States Army Air Corps. When I was in high school I fell in love with a girl who was everything I wanted. We went around together in school, and after I graduated I used to go to school just to see her.

We had a misunderstanding over something I said, which she misunderstood, but she refused to accept my explanation, and when she wouldn't give me another chance I joined the service. We correspond and once she closed her letter with "Love." Does she still care for me?

A DESPERATE SOLDIER.

Where is your courage, my dear boy? You belong to a profession in which every man is supposed to make a crony of death, and yet you're afraid to ask this girl how you stand in her affection. Don't lose another day.

Budget Plan Ends Disputes

Their evenings spoiled so unnecessarily with talk of money matters! Naturally, the husband resents such use of his leisure time, but what can a wife do? Unbudgeted finances will run wild.

Right when she needs a new permanent, the installment for the refrigerator is due — and, however will she pay for Junior's vacation at camp?

Budgeting could end such worries. On a budget you don't wait for needs to arise and then scramble around for the money. You plan ahead—and plan not only for the needs but for the pleasures.

For such items as vacations and personal allowances you set up an Advancement Fund—giving it about 14 per cent of your monthly income, $22.40 if the total is $160. This fund you divide according to your desires: the wife's allowance will be large enough to care for such items as permanents and carfare.

But how can planning make not enough money enough? By finding out what portions of your income you should allot to regular expenses—rent, food, household operating—you may find that your spending has been topheavy.

You Can Be Beautiful

Famed, Fragrant Colognes Now Available to All

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOU search diligently for the mark of quality on any cosmetic or perfume you buy . . . you're a wise girl . . . for it's understandable that long-established houses with a built-up prestige can well afford to give you more for your money . . . and that's the thought behind a really wonderful cologne that is being currently featured in Boston.

To your mother the names and scents will have a nostalgic association . . . marble palaces in Newport peopled by Vanderbilts with no thought of Father Divine's disciples invading their lofty halls . . . crowned heads of Europe flocking to the glorious gaiety of a young continent, with no thought of lost empires . . . and to you, the association will be of tonight's and tomorrow's romantic ventures, for the fragrances are as joyous as anticipation and they seem just as new to you.

Among the several famous fragrances, we prefer "Jockey Club," named after the famous organizations scattered through the world. The citric cologne smell, so clean and fresh, is blended with flowers and the whole is subtly delicate, with undoubted dash. It's as good outdoors as in, and you'll adore it for every one of your summer moods

There is a stamp of distinction about bottling that makes it a wonderful gift . . . the familiar hand-molded, parchment-sealed bottles have hardly been changed from their very beginnings . . . and again, we remind you, the very finest of refreshing, lasting ingredients are used.

If you'd like to learn all about this exclusive (but not correspondingly expensive) series of fragrant colognes, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a self-addressed envelope

Manners

Chaperonage For Grads

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—A group of us girls are planning to go to dine and dance after graduation exercises. We would like to invite a married couple about 30 years of age, to be our chaperones. Will that be enough "chaperonage"?

2. What type of wrap should we wear over our evening dresses? Would a short fur jacket be too "swanky"? How about a velvet wrap? R. M.

1—You don't tell me how many girls and boys will be in the group. But if there are only a few asking this couple will probably be enough, although it would be pleasant if you could invite another couple, perhaps a couple who are friends of this man and his wife.

2—Fur jackets seem now to be for all seasons and lightweight ones are much worn now even in summer. FAITHFUL GUARDIAN OF AMERICAN PRINCIPLES
John Nance Garner, Elder Democratic Statesman

THERE IS AN OLD PROVERB that the best refuge from doubts which concern the future is in a place where past trust has not been misplaced.

The Democratic national convention next week will be sorely beset by doubts concerning the manner in which it may best contribute to the peace, security and happiness of the United States.

Why does it not remember the proverb, and nominate for the presidency a man upon whom momentous trust has often been placed and always justified?

Who in the Democratic party provides a better refuge from doubt and uncertainty than John Nance Garner?

Who has had longer and wider experience in government?

Who has been more faithful to the trust which the American people put in the Democratic party eight years ago?

Who has adhered more closely to the principles of the Democratic party, or more tenaciously to AMERICAN PRINCIPLES?

WHAT OTHER Democrat than this universally admired and respected elder statesman of the Democratic party could more promptly bring order out of the confusion in which the convention will meet?

John Nance Garner has been the second in command throughout the New Deal Administration.

He has supported the New Deal in all its good purposes, and has been responsible for the attainment of many of them.

He has counselled candidly against the mistakes of the New Deal, and in the conspicuous instance of the subversive attack upon the Supreme Court was instrumental in preventing a grievous mistake.

He has been reliably partisan and loyal to the New Deal when it was in the interest of the country to be so; and he has been unfalteringly AMERICAN when it was the New Deal fashion and disposition to question, qualify and impair Americanism.

John Nance Garner has many times been the refuge of the New Deal from its mistaken adventures into trial and error.

Does not the Democratic party see occasion and opportunity for utilizing the vast experience of Mr. Garner in meeting the present and pending emergencies of the country?

Did not Patrick Henry say, in 1775, when America was in the depths of its darkest hour:

"I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience.

"I know no way of judging of the future but by the past."

The Democratic party has had several varieties of experience.

IT HAS EXPERIMENTED with radical and alien departures from American tradition and principle.

It has made costly and nearly disastrous burdens of debts and deficits for the distressed country to bear, and has ruinously taxed the people with impairment of normal and necessary private enterprise, and has already set up a legacy of a mortgaged future for coming generations of Americans to inherit.

But in none of this has John Garner conspired, or been complacent. He has sought constantly to keep government within the word and spirit of the Constitution, and to keep delegated authority within democratic processes.

The Democratic party has been fortunate to have had such a statesman highly placed in the New Deal Administration; for it might otherwise have brought the affairs of the country to such a state by this time that no Democrat could deserve or get the confidence of the people.

Should not the Democratic national convention attempt to shape the future of the Democratic party according to the ideals and principles of a man whom all the people still respect and trust?

"EVERY CITY, town and village in America should have an organized group of citizens who would make it their business to carry on a constant campaign for the purpose of uncovering and exposing all forms of endeavor to destroy our form of government," says Raymond M. MY DAY

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 13—I went to a meeting Thursday morning of the Refugee Children's Committee and, as usual, was impressed by the horrid legal details which enter into doing anything between governments.

I came away feeling that all I could possibly cope with was something perfectly concrete and simple, such as finding homes into which to put children when they arrive.

How they are to get here, or how we are to live up to the rules and regulations of our respective governments, is something which requires such patience to find out and follow up, that I believe only trained legal minds can possibly learn it.

I GATHER from the accounts in some of the metropolitan papers yesterday, that there is still confusion as to whether these children can be transported across the ocean. Some people assure us that the British government is prepared to bring 2000 immediately. Other people, who should know, insist that the ships are not available.

However, most reliable sources of information seem to feel quite certain that several thousand children will come immediately if our regulations are made easy enough so that not only rich children, but poor children may also be admitted.

This, I understand, the State Department and Department of Justice are arranging today. I hope that, from now on, the responsibility for sending children will lie entirely with the British government. Our responsibility is to see that we facilitate their coming in every possible way, which I am sure is being done.

AFTER the meeting, two friends had what was supposed to be lunch with me. We were so hurried, we only had a few minutes in which to swallow a mouthful of food at the little restaurant down by the fountain in Rockefeller Plaza.

Then we went straight to the NBC Studios for my broadcast. From there I drove to Quaker Hill Farm near Pawling, New York, to see Mrs. William Brown Meloney.

She always holds my profound admiration for her courage and ability to conquer physical ills through the triumph of her active mind. She feels as I do, that for the moment, defense on every front is the greatest issue before us. That the sooner we discover that the old situations which we faced are no longer with us, the safer we shall be.

New situations have to be met in new ways and those who cling too long to the past, are not only useless, but dangerous. Instead of clarifying the real issues, they becloud their own and the people's thinking.

HOME to find a guest awaiting me, and to spend a very pleasant peaceful evening. I felt that we had been gone a long time and had moved in a stream of hectic activities, and yet we only left here Tuesday night.

Rain yesterday, but that can be enjoyed with an open fire pleasant company and the usual amount of mail on which to catch up.

OPTION TAKEN ON PLAY FOR STAR

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, July 13—Last week the operators of the Republic Theater on 42nd Street—which presents burlesque shows—were startled to discover that among the 11 a. m. customers were Marquis James, the biographer who was awarded a Pulitzer Prize for his Life of Sam Houston, "The Raven" . . . Mr. James was accompanied by Louis Nizer, the Paramount lawyer, and a stenographer . . . The burlesque show producers were flattered at such distinguished patronage. As a matter of fact, however, the men were there to secure evidence in a law suit being brought by James because of a movie called "Man of Conquest"—a story allegedly based upon the Houston biography. The stenographer was making a record of the script. And James and his lawyer were in that burlesque house that morning because it was the only N. Y. Theater where "Man of Conquest" was shown.

IRENE RICH SIGNS FOR FILM LEAD

By Louella O. Parsons

Irene Rich

HOLLYWOOD, July 13—Irene Rich returned from Miami a few days ago with a $6500 check for the Red Cross. She was only home a few hours when Scotty Dunlap paged her and asked her to play the lead in "Queen of the Yukon," Jack London thriller, opposite Charles Bickford. Funny thing about the $6500 which Irene went to Miami to collect. A political foe of Mayor Alexander Orr telephoned saying he would pay $5000 if Irene Rich would come down there and kiss him. The foe, according to Irene, thought to embarrass the mayor but the tables were turned.

Although Miami had subscribed its budget, $6500 in addition was collected while Irene was there and she did yeoman service, speech making and personal appearances. She says even the cab drivers on the street would shout, "Did you get your money?" Phil Rosen, old-time director will direct "Queen of the Yukon," and Monogram is really putting on the ritz, so to speak, and spending plenty of money.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

THE GRAY roadster turned into the driveway and ground to a stop. The man at the wheel took one last look at himself in the mirror and felt his spirits soar to a new high.

His hands gripped the steering wheel tighter as he allowed his thoughts to dwell on the charms of one devastatingly pretty Felecia Warner. For he was as yet uncertain as to what that young lady's reactions would be when she saw him again.

Then, chiding himself for his nervousness, he sprang up the steps and rang the bell.

He had looked forward to this moment since the day a month before when he began the long journey westward, where the skilled hand of a plastic surgeon was to give him a new nose.

It was the critical blue eyes of Miss Felecia Warner, and hers alone, that had caused him to set forth in search of a handsomer proboscis, than the one with which he had been endowed.

IT WAS INDEED a honey of a nose. It was, as you might say, an artistic masterpiece, a triumph of masculine beauty.

After all, he told himself, as he stood crumpling his hat in nervous fingers, why should he have the jitters! Hadn't he and Felecia Warner known one another since they were kids together in grammar school! And just that long it was that he had been in love with her, though she had always teased him and said she could never love anyone with a big nose.

He had never taken her seriously or thought that she meant it until the night he proposed to her.

FOOTSTEPS sounded as someone came to the door. He swallowed his Adams apple and prayed that she wouldn't notice his confusion. Then he heard her low musical voice saying "Oh, it's you Peter, come on in!"

He tensed expectantly as she came and sitting beside him said, "I've been wishing you would drop over Peter so you could meet my husband," she turned and called to someone in the next room. He felt suddenly as if a great weight were crushing and choking him as he looked up at the person who entered the room.

He saw a man, a small man with a timid face, whose great hooked nose curved out and downward, resembling the beak of some giant bird of prey.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

IT'S A BIG THING, that new picture, "ALL THIS AND HEAVEN TOO." Bigger than a mere love story, even one played by Bette Davis and Charles Boyer. I'll leave the magnificent acting and superb setting to the regular critics. And believe me, they're worth walking many a mile to see. But there's more to it than that. It does things to you, that picture. Revives things you'd almost forgotten—things we're needing in America today, even worse than we need guns and planes.

KNOW the story? It's based on Rachel Field's historical novel. Here are two people who actually lived and loved in a day as dire as our own and, in some ways, curiously like our own. Back in the 1840's France—rotting at the core, tottering toward revolution. Ruthless, profligate wealth . . . snarling Poverty, squaring off for the kill. Powerful people who did as they pleased and thought nothing would happen. And, symbol of the whole vicious regime, the splendid home of the Duc and Duchesse de Fresnin, a home made hideous by the violence of a jealous wife.

Into that home love came in the person of the gentle, little governess, Henriette Deluzy-Desportes. And to four terrified little children and a tortured man, that love meant a heaven of which they had to show how a cowering child may bloom into gaiety and courage under the touch of tenderness, that picture would have been worth the making.

Shameful, how many children there are like that. Right here and now! In "nice" homes of parents who believe themselves to be models. Well fed, beautifully dressed, elaborately serviced children, yet they are actually willing, withering for lack of that simple, natural affection in which they should take root.

A LOVE STORY? No, something far more primitive and poignant—a conflict between savagery and civilization. Between the restraint of a spiritual ideal and the wild, hot clutch of unbridled impulse. And, though no one believed them in their tragic agony, the ideal won. They had kept the faith which seemed to them more precious even than love.

You don't believe it? You don't believe people could be so impossibly good in the face of every provocation? Yet once you believed it before life's grime had dimmed your own young ideals. And once this whole, God-fearing nation believed it. We need to regain that belief. We need to believe in goodness again, in decency and restraint and quiet nobility. We need such a revival of faith.

THE day Jimmy Gale telephoned that he was bringing the boss and the boss's wife home to dinner, Sabina Gale faced a crisis. She had exactly one dollar. But, being a bride, she purred sweetly:

"Yes, it's all right, darling . . . No, I don't mind short notice, dear."

"Make it a bang-up dinner, honey."

Jimmy liked to throw bang-up parties. He was open-handed, expansive. He fitted this swank, mid-western suburb of Northwood, whereas its luxury standards struck terror to Sabina's cautious New England soul. She wasn't used to a hair wave every two weeks, a new car every Fall, and other apparently vital necessities of Northwood living.

"Remember that dinner they gave us and give-em the works," Jimmy said.

"Yes, darling."

Sabina rang off and stared at her single dollar bill. She recalled that dinner too well. The Kelvins—this same boss and his wife who were coming tonight—had given it to welcome her, and they'd succeeded in frightening her. Caviar, turtle soup, fresh lobster, wild rice and game. The cost of a lobster coddled in ice from Florida to Indiana shoots up with every mile, and the price of wild rice is wild indeed.

Wide eyed, appalled, Sabina had listened to Doris Kelvin lay down the Northwood code. Doris was a bride, too, but of older vintage than Sabina, and eager to instruct her. And she was Jimmy's boss' wife. Sabina had to listen.

"Try Charles for your wave," Doris bubbled. "Expensive but so worth it. And when you get your new car—"

Quite as though the wave and the new car were absolute musts, and they were. Jimmy's sixty a week wasn't going to be the lordly income Sabina had thought it. She went over her budget. It didn't occur to her to abandon the budget or to open charge accounts. She came from a small Vermont town and a family that was not rich but never broke, because it lived within its income. If you spent too much one way you economized in another. Aunt Sarah, for example, collected cameos, but cut down the same fur coat until it became a muff. This eccentricity balanced the budget.

Sabina feared the system would not work in Northwood, but it was the only one she knew. So she paid Charles $15 to turn her smooth golden hair into a merry-go-round; then she fired her part-time maid, to save the $15. The new car was harder going. She scratched "Dining room set" off her list and made the breakfast table do.

INVITED TO DINNER

Now here she was, on the day before pay day, within her budget, with a dollar to go. She'd been feeling proud of herself. A dollar was ample for food for Jimmy and herself—but a company dinner!

The telephone rang again. Doris said it was sweet of her to take pity on them when their cook was ill and they'd adore coming, and she must hire a "divine new landscape artist."

"Expensive but so worth it. Just the man to do young grounds."

Sabina had planned to do the modest grounds of the bungalow with a pound of grass seed. She began wildly:

"We can't afford—"

"You can't afford to miss him," Doris said firmly. "Every one in Northwood is having him."

"I'll see," Sabina wavered.

No time now to worry over stretching the budget to cover a landscape artist. Her problem was immediate. She thought a long time, her eyes flecked with sparks of desperation. Finally she nodded, her pretty mouth rather grim. She put a basket on her arm and, in defiance of Northwood which shopped languidly by telephone, she went to market with her dollar.

When Jimmy came in he looked in horror at the cocktail makings she had set out: a heel of rye, six lemons and an orange.

"Why didn't you remind me to bring liquor?" he howled. "We need vermouth, fizz water, Scotch, everything! I'll run down to the liquor store."

Sabina lifted a flushed face from the steaming pots on the stove.

"What will you use for money?" she asked. "There's a law against charging liquor. Besides there's enough for three cocktails. I won't have any."

"But, darling," Jimmy began, with a venemous twist to the "darling."

CROWDED DINING TABLE

Then the door bell rang. He put on a hasty smile and ushered Doris and Philip Kelvin into the living room, and also into a savory fog. The scent of cooking overflowed the kitchen and filled the small house. Cabbage, turnips, onions, contributed powerful bits to the steaming atmosphere. Doris wrinkled her nose in distaste, then smiled quickly.

"Vegetables! How nice—for the complexion," she murmured.

Sabina removed a big white apron to greet them, then put it on again to serve dinner. She had moved the breakfast table into the dining room, and there was room enough if every one minded elbows.

"My dear, we wouldn't have imposed if we'd known your maid was away," Doris apologized.

"I fired her to save money," Sabina said flatly.

Jimmy reddened. Doris fell back on shocked silence. Only Phil Kelvin seemed oblivious of the social blunder. He didn't appear to mind frugality; yet as dinner progressed his affable expression changed and he went into a grouch.

It was a New England boiled dinner, complete with dumplings and hunks of mutton. No trimmings. Just plain food and plenty of it. A dollar's worth of cabbage and mutton goes far. There are two standpoints on a New England boiled dinner. You can take it or you can't. Despite his bad temper, Phil Kelvin ate as though he liked it, Sabina saw. This was her only spark of hope. About all else there was an atmosphere of flat, strained failure. Doris picked at a carrot and said:

"Too clever of you to manage this."

"I have to stay within my budget," Sabina quavered, shrinking from Jimmy's reproachful eyes

"Smart girl!" said Phil Kelvin, but he shot a meaningful glance at Doris and snapped answers to Jimmy's polite, fored conversation.

They left early, with syruppy assurances that they'd had a delightful dinner and a lovely evening, though it was obvious that they'd had neither. The atmosphere was thick with discomfort. Sabina didn't dare look at Jimmy. He paced the room; he rumpled his hair; he grew purple with the effort to control his temper. Finally he erupted.

"I know you did your best, darling, but—"

"I certainly did, with only one dollar."

That tore it.

"Didn't you ever hear of running a bill at a grocer's?" he roared. "Did you have to humiliate me in front of my boss by your New England parsimony? Damn your budget! Where'll it be if I get fired because my wife hasn't enough sense to make a fuss when I invite my boss to dinner?"

Sabina gasped. "Oh, Jimmy, he won't fire you!"

"Maybe not," Jimmy conceded, "but this puts me in an embarrassing spot, just after I asked for a raise. Phil will think we put on this poverty act to prove we need more money. And when they gave us a swell dinner too! I feel cheap! You'd wreck my career just to keep your blasted budget straight."

HUSBAND RAGES

Having spent his rage, he went to sleep and snored man-wise. Sabina lay awake. She was making up her mind to a decisive step. She must leave Jimmy. He was right. She didn't fit here. She was plain New England. Some day he'd find a wife who would keep up with Northwood and forward his career.

Next morning her eyes were hot with tears, but her resolution remained. He went to work without so much as a good-by kiss. That clinched it. She planned to do him a last good turn. She would explain to Doris that last night was her fault, so the Kelvins wouldn't hold it against him.

Doris came to the door, dressed for the street and carrying a suitcase. She sniffled as though she had a cold.

"About last night—" Sabina began wretchedly.

Doris's cold developed suddenly into weeping.

"Don't talk about it!" she wailed. "I've heard all I can stand."

Sabina trembled. "Is Phil angry?"

"He's furious."

"But it wasn't Jimmy's fault."

"Oh, I don't blame anybody," Doris said sadly. "Phil's right. That's why I'm leaving him. I am extravagant. I've run him into debt. I'm ruining him. I'm leaving him for his own good. I don't know how to cook mutton and cabbage and cheap things," she ended on a noble note.

Sabina sat down rather suddenly on the porch steps.

"You mean he's not mad at Jimmy?"

Doris shook her head. "No, he's giving Jimmy a raise. He thinks you're both smart."

"Ten why—"

"He's mad at me. He says that dinner woke him up, made him realize I was just a butterfly. I am. Oh-oo-oo-"

"Don't cry," Sabina begged. I'm getting an idea. You see, I was leaving Jimmy too. He said I was ruining him too. But I'm not. He's gotten a raise. He needs me. Oh, it's all mixed up but maybe Phil was wrong too."

Doris blinked through her tears.

"He has a tendency to stinginess," she said thoughtfully. "He might turn into a miser without me."

"They need us to balance the seesaw," said Sabina.

They considered each other in deep, long consideration of this theory.[8] Then they shook hands. They were atop their first domestic mountain. They laughed together.

Let's go shopping," Doris said. "I want to buy mutton if you'll show me how to cook it."

"And I," said Sabina, "want to charge lobsters."

JOINS GOOD DRIVERS LEAGUE

CHARLES Hodgkins, 16, Arlington High School pupil, is one of the enthusiastic Boston boys who have joined the Ford Good Drivers' League and entered the $30,000 prize contest for championship high-school drivers. Charles seeks expert advice from Captain Richard McInnis while Stewardess Josephine Smith looks on.

Buick Survey Shows Men Buy Most of Cars

FLINT, Mich., July 13—While feminine influence is recognized as a dominant factor in selection of the family automobile, men sign 82.8 per cent of the orders, according to an analysis completed today by Buick sales department statisticians.

The study covered new car sales by this manufacturer since the announcement of 1940 models last fall and classified the new owners as to occupations.

Fourteen per cent of the orders for new cars were signed by women. Orders signed in the names of firms and business concerns accounted for 3.2 per cent of the total.

Classification by occupational groups showed a wide spread of ownership into virtually every trade and profession. More laborers bought new Buick cars this year than financial men, the former group accounting for 2.4 per cent of the total as against 2.2 per cent for the latter.

In the financial classification were listed bankers, bond and stock brokers, financiers, organizers, investors and the like. Manufacturers accounted for 3.5 per cent of all Buick sales while buyers holding clerical positions such as accountants, bookkeepers, auditors, clerks, stenographers, secretaries, agents, telephone and telegraph operators, accounted for 3.5 per cent.

Leading the list of occupational groups were merchants and tradesmen with 15.3 per cent; salesmen with 11.5 per cent and business executives 11.2 per cent.

New Canadian Car Tax Cited

OTTAWA July 13—New Canadian taxes on purchase of new cars were for dual purpose of conserving foreign exchange and freeing industry for production of war materials.

The new tax rate applies to manufacturer's prices and ranges from 10 per cent on cars valued up to $700 to 30 per cent on cars valued over $1200.

Dealers predict the high tax rate on new car purchases will result in increased used car sales and thus will result in higher prices in the used car field.

Food Stamp Survey Will Be Made Here

Chairman Milo Perkins of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation today announced from Washington that he would make a survey of the practicability of inaugurating the food stamp plan in the Boston area.

His announcement followed a conference with Congressmen John W. Dingell and Thomas Flaherty and Boston Public Welfare Director William O'Hare.

BERKSHIRE AUTO TRIP PLEASANT

J. Leo Sugrue, Boston Evening American automobile editor, and Thomas P. Fullam of the Boston Auto Club in testing this sightseeing trip in the summer series headed their Chrysler convertible via Massachusetts ave., the Harvard bridge and Memorial Drive on No. 2 to avoid Cambridge, Arlington and Concord and to reach as rapidly as possible the scenic beauty of the Berkshire Hills.

It is an ideal day and a half or two-day week-end trip and covers many of the outstanding beauty spots of Massachusetts. Leaving Ayer, they passed Fort Devens, established in 1917, and now the scene of considerable activity.

Fitchburg, an important manufacturing city, produces paper, metal articles, textile and leather goods. The large rock seen in the square is the Rollstone Boulder left on top of Rollstone Hill during the glacial period.

Gardner is the largest chair and baby carriage manufacturing city in the world. Following west on No. 2, they crossed the Connecticut River over the magnificent new French King bridge. This offers a fine panorama of the valley below. From this point the trail is known as the French King Highway.

Greenfield with its wide elm-lined streets is often called the most beautiful western town in Massachusetts. It has over 25 manufacturing plants and acts as a center for the surrounding agricultural countryside.

Salmon Falls on the Deerfield River has three separate cataracts with deep pools at the foot of each, and received its name because of the vast number of salmon caught here in the past. The flower covered foot bridge that is seen below is an old trolley bridge.

West of Charlemont on No. 2 is Mohawk Trail State Forest where picnicking grounds and swimming facilities are available.

A replica of Old Fort Massachusetts built in 1745 is open during the summer. This is located in North Adams. At Williamstown they turned south on No. 7 through Pittsfield which is the heart of the Berkshires to Lenox a famous resort for over 100 years.

Pleasant Valley Bird and Wild Flower Sanctuary are among its outstanding possessions. Leaving Lenox on No. 20 through Lee the beginning of Jacobs Ladder and is a well known summer and winter resort. They arrived shortly in Springfield, and returned to Boston via the southwest cut off and Worcester Turnpike.

NEW K. OF C. CHAPEL

A new council of the Knights of Columbus Boys Camp at Hawley and is to be used Sunday with appropriate ceremonies, it was announced by State Deputy John J. Sullivan. The chapel is the gift of the Catholic Columbian Women of Springfield.

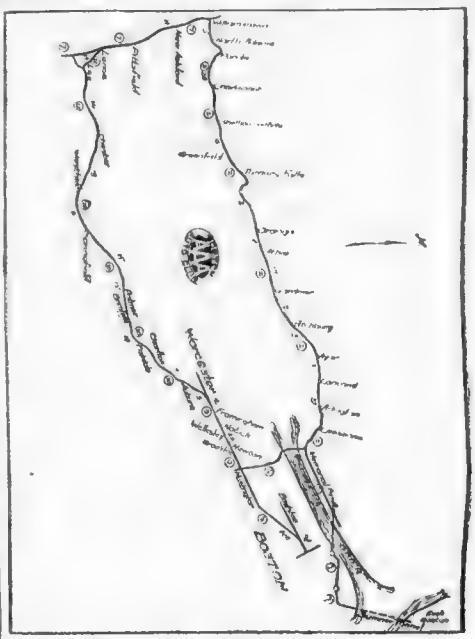
TO BERKSHIRE AND RETURN



NO. 8 TRIP—J. Leo Sugrue, Boston American Automobile Editor, and Thomas P. Fullam of the Boston Auto Club found this trip ideal for a long week-end and permits the visit to outstanding beauty spots.

Unified Exams for Licenses Proposed

A scientifically arrived at procedure for the licensing of motor vehicle drivers, which is expected to improve the efficiency of driver examinations has been approved by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, according to Dr. Harry R. DeSilva, director of the Yale University-Esso Safety Foundation's Co-operative Driver research.

Dr. DeSilva said that the administrators had also approved a driver manual which will be adapted by various states to be used by applicants for drivers' licenses.

These two volumes are the result of extensive research carried on by Dr. DeSilva at Yale for many months in connection with his study of the human element in automobile accidents. This work has been closely guided by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators and has been financed by a grant obtained by the Esso Safety Foundation from the Standard Oil Co. and New Jersey.

The driver license examination procedure represents a composite of the best practices of motor vehicle licensing departments all over the country and breaks down the license problem into three headings:

The functions of the examiner, the functions of the supervisor and the functions of administrative officials.

It has been set up as a guide, not only for those states which have not examined drivers in any way, but for the states whose present licensing procedure does not contain one or more essentials in the licensing of drivers.

The driver manual contains four parts and deals with the growth of the traffic problem and the importance of the driving privilege, those driving regulations most essential to safety, rules for safe driving, proper maintenance of the motor vehicle and the rules for obtaining a driver's license and a motor vehicle registration certificate. It has been prepared as a model for motor vehicle departments in the preparation of their manuals and will be adapted by various states to their individual requirements.

Warns of Used Car Price Jump

There is a tendency towards higher used car prices says F. A. Ordway, president and treasurer of the Hanley Kimball Co., distributors of Hudson automobiles. Already certain makes of new cars have advanced and used car buyers have told him during the last week that good used cars were costing from 5 to 10 per cent more.

The public are always conscious to price changes as evidenced in increased sales in both new and used cars in the last two weeks, he said.

"With the cost of materials increasing, I believe we can look for further advances soon. The smart buyer is purchasing his car now while prices are still low."

MOXIE REWARDS HEROES

The Moxie awards for this week are going out to heroes and heroines who played a prominent part in the news columns of the Boston Evening American.

The awards given by Frank Archer, president of the Moxie company, will go to the people selected by the editor of the Boston Evening American for outstanding courage. They are:

John Hanley, 15, of Terrace st., Roxbury, who stopped a runaway horse as it was plunging toward a group of children; Alfred Dotte, Hesperus st., Saugus, who saved Richard Fritz from drowning in the Saugus River.

Other awards will go to: Mrs. May Ellis, 31, of Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, who beat off four hoodlums attacking her husband and suffered severe injuries in the fray; Police Matron Mrs. Alice Devine, who gave a blood transfusion in emergency case at the Brockton Hospital, returning to her duties immediately afterwards.

And another to Mrs. James Walsh of Montgomery st., South End, who rescued her husband, 64, a cripple, from burning to death when he accidentally set his bed on fire.

Each of these will receive a case of Moxie—because they "had Moxie" and proved level-headed in a crisis.

Ann Berman Will Wed Record Employe

Miss Ann Berman of 86 Bernard st. and Benjamin Broomfield of 42 Floyd st., both of Dorchester, will be married tomorrow afternoon at Aperion Plaza, Warren st., Roxbury.

Broomfield is the central district supervisor of the Boston Daily Record and has been with the Hearst newspapers in Boston for many years past. The couple will honeymoon at Atlantic City, N. J., and the N. Y. World's Fair.

Boston After Dark

—By GEORGE HOLLAND—

cause the team has been collaborating for five or six years . . . Nothing much happened, however, in their attempted conquest of Tin Pan Alley . . . The "break" came the past March when Joe Leahy, the young Boston arranger and orchestra leader, liked a song the Quincy boys had written, entitled "I Look At You."

LEAHY "PLUGGED" IT LOCALLY, and then he himself won a booking that caused him to change the Leahy (for some unexplained reason) to Leighton . . . As "Joe Leighton and His Orchestra," the unit was enlarged and a six-week engagement at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond, Va., was arranged . . . The band was a hit there, and Virginia Beach was the next stand . . . During these engagements, the Leightons continued to play "I Look At You" . . . Broadcast Music, Inc., the rival organization to ASCAP publishing firms which has been set up by the radio companies, heard the song, and published it . . . It has an all-Boston angle, this strange little story of two unknowns actually finding it possible to crash the music-writing game.

PERHAPS IT HOLDS FORTH SOME hope to the hundreds constantly scribbling lyrics and music—against the advice of this column and numerous other discouraging influences who regard Tin Pan Alley as a closely-held corporation alomst impossible to storm . . . Meantime, Joe Leighton and His Orchestra—eleven Boston musicians and a Boston leader—is on the way up . . . A very choice booking is the Totem Pole, Norumbega Park, ballroom, and word reaches the column that Joe (Leahy) Leighton and his boys are booked for the latter two weeks in August . . . It might be a shrewd notion to change the name back to Leahy for this engagement.

Used Car biz is humming at Somerville Buick Co., Cambridge, is looking forward to a well earned vacation . . . The entire sales staff of Hub Chevrolet Co., Cambridge, is focusing its activities on a gigantic Used Truck Drive . . . Bill Hurwitz at Fee Motors, on Comm. Ave., certainly has a fine voice. He'll sing for you if you bid high enough at his weekly auctions . . . Nat Rosnov of Albany Motors, rates with most people as one of the smartest, as well as one of the youngest used car dealers in New England . . . Nick Sullivan and Tom Moloney have been appointed used car managers at Oakley Motors, Inc. Jim Wallace, of Medford, Mike Worth and John Kinsman, of Dorchester, are the new salesmen. Nick would like more salesmen as biz is improving . . . Bob "Abababa" Richards, Tommy Mehan and Jim Canaris of Jackson Chev. had a wonderful time in Onset this past week-end . . . Al Shuman, Jack Hurley and Clarence Zarren of Jordan Place Motors, Cambridge, are certainly having a busy time these days. Business is O. K. . . . George Kassian of Hub Motors is opening a used car annex and is going to greatly enlarge his Plymouth, DeSoto outlet. George is a Boston boy who is making good . . . Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

LONG SHOT players never enjoyed such a prosperous week as they have at Suffolk Downs . . . The form horses have been in all kinds of difficulties, and those persons who have a natural inclination for a price have been merry as they have paraded to the payoff windows.

There is an old race track adage which says that the quickest way to go broke at a race track is to play long shots . . . Over a period of time this is true, but it is equally true that one has little chance of beating horse racing by backing the favorites . . . Even when the form horses are going well they seldom score 30 per cent of the wins.

One of the smartest racing men in the country once told me that the only way to beat the races is to pick horses to win that will pay from five to eight to one . . . One of the biggest bettors to ever attack the mutuel machines in New England was a show bettor . . . I have seen him wager as much as $5000 on a horse to show . . . He was very successful until the latter part of the 1939 season when the top horses started running out of the money . . . The same big bettor was back at the New England tracks this season, but after he ran into a series of heavy losses he took a plane to New York, and has not returned here . . . This show bettor once took a plane from Boston to Baltimore to wager $10,000 on Johnstown to show in the Preakness.

There isn't such a thing as a sure winner at a horse track . . . There are almost 60 different ways in which a horse can lose a race . . . This percentage that is always running against every horse in a race accounts for defeats of heavy favorites like Little Bolo and Floragina.

The Story of Chicago O'Brien

CHICAGO O'BRIEN over the years has been one of the most successful race track bettors. He has always liked to play horses to win.

"I try to wait for spots at a race meeting," Chicago O'Brien once told me. "I frequently make only one wager at an entire meeting, but when I do like a horse I'll back him to the limit. I have often wagered as much as $20,000 on a single race."

I remarked to Chicago O'Brien that he must have made a great deal of money during his long career as a bettor.

"I did all right," was the modest reply.

"What did you do with your huge winnings?" I queried.

Chicago O'Brien smiled and looked a bit sheepish.

"I decided to play the stock market," admitted Chicago O'Brien. "I figured that J. Pierpont Morgan was the smartest person connected with the stock market, and I invested my money in Morgan stocks. Then came the stock market crash, and even gilt edged securities were not worth a dime a dozen. I was able to hold on to my stocks, but, of course, suffered heavy losses.

"I decided in future to stick to horse racing where I at least could get a photo finish for my money."

Random Shots at Target

SHELDON FAIRBANKS didn't like the condition of the track at Suffolk Downs yesterday, and was granted permission to scratch Range Dust . . . This horse likes a fast racing strip . . . Supreme Speed then came on to beat Remarkable and Floragina.

The news that Bimelech would not run against Sirocco and The Finest in the special match race planned for today on account of track conditions was a disappointment to the public . . . Bill Hurley, who trains Col. Bradley's horses, says Bimelech does not like the mud . . . Bill does not believe any race horse can do himself justice on a muddy track, and has frequently scratched some of his better thoroughbreds under such conditions.

The day before the Preakness, Charley McLennan says Hurley sent him word that if the track was muddy Bimelech wouldn't run . . . McLennan carried the news to Alfred Vanderbilt.

"If Bill Hurley does not believe Bimelech could do himself justice in the mud, I wouldn't want him to start," said Vanderbilt.

Fortunately for the Preakness the weather was good and the track fast . . . Bimelech then went on to win.

Suffolk Downs has had more than its share of rain and mud and is entitled to a break for the $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap that will be run off on next Wednesday afternoon . . . John Hood of New York dropped into town with greetings to this writer from Gene Tunney . . . We dropped over to the Paddock Club at Suffolk Downs where Hood clicked with Rollabuzzy, Codoll and Saving Grace.

"Spider" Murphy had a wistful look on his face when Slump did just that and ran out of the money.

"The Rube is coming back tonight with a vengeance, which means I gotta take an early afternoon workout. Stengel Elects Salvo To Square Cubs Series

CHICAGO, July 13—Hoping for an even break in the four game series which concludes today, Manager Casey Stengel is sending Big Manny Salvo, Bees latest mount standout, after the Cubs here at Wrigley Field today.

Having been whipped in two of their three starts in their first stop of the third invasion the Bees have made into the mid-west this year, Casey Stengel is anxious to square matters.

And Salvo may be just the man to turn the trick.

WON THREE OUT OF FOUR

Many came to the Bees last month with Glossup in exchange for Cuccinello. The husky right hander had been around for some time but the Red Sox and Giants both found him lacking. In fact the Giants had him down at Jersey City when they made the trade with Boston.

Salvo came up and has been pitching great ball. He had scored with three victories in four starts. His last effort was a masterpiece in which he shut out Brooklyn.

The invader will match efforts with Jake Mooty, the Cubs' freshman sensation, and as a result there should be quite a hill duel out at Wrigley Field today.

Sailor Bill Posedel went down to a tough defeat yesterday when the Cubs came up with a 2 to 0 triumph for their eleventh over the Bees in 14 starts this year. The ex-gob allowed only six hits, struck out four and walked but two men.

Unfortunately, though, Verne Olson, rookie left hander, was even stingier with safe blows for he restricted the Swarm to five hits.

POSEDEL UNLUCKY

Olson was wild at times and walked seven men but with the pressure on he was great. He fanned no less than seven of the Stengelmen.

The Bees had one big chance and that came in the third. Bill Posedel started matters by singling but he was quickly rubbed out when Sibby Sisti hit into a double play. After that, Johnny Cooney walked and Gene Moore doubled sending Cooney to third. Chet Ross was purposely passed filling the bases This put it up to Max West and the best the All-Star game hero could do was roll out to Herman

DOUBLE STEAL WORKS

The Cubs picked up their first run in the last of the third, when Hack doubled and scored on Gleeson's single. Their second and final run came in the seventh.

BLISTER ROBS FELLER OF NO-HITTER

PHILADELPHIA, July 13 (AP)—A blister kept Cleveland's Bobby Feller from chalking up his second no-hit, no-run game of the season, says Rollie Hemsley, Feller's battery mate.

The 21-year-old Iowa farm boy turned in a 1-0, one-hit performance against the Athletics last night.

For seven innings the pride of Van Meter, Ia., mowed down the A's without a hit, only one man reaching first by getting a walk. Then Dick Seibert, first man up for the A's in the eighth, singled over second base.

"Siebert's a fastball hitter," Hemsley declared. "If it wasn't for that blister we'd have curved him on the first pitch. But the blister gave Bob trouble when he tried to throw a hook, so we gave Siebert a fast one and he hit it."

The blister developed on the fourth finger of Feller's right hand and resulted, Hemsley explained, from the force with which the hurler gripped the ball.

On opening day in Chicago April 16 Feller twirled a no-hitter against the White Sox, striking out eight and giving up five bases on balls.

He had better control last night. He retired the first 11 men to face him—six on strikeouts—before Al Brancato walked.

After that the A's went down in order until Siebert's single. Then with two down, Al Rubeling walked and Feller uncorked a wild pitch to put men on second and third.

A hit at this stage would have given the A's a 2 to 1 victory, but Feller slipped three strikes against pinchhitter Chubby Dean.

Altogether he fanned 13 batters, five short of his own major league record of 18 established two years ago.

BISHOP 4 UP ON MARTIN AT 18TH

By BILL GRIMES

WEST PEABODY, July 13—While playing the first round of the finals of the 36th Massachusetts Amateur Championship this morning at the Salem Country Club, Ted Bishop, Woodland, tossed a 70 at Leo Martin, Trafelo, and went into his lunch with a four-hole lead.

Bishop's golf was too hot for Martin, and the pace he set was far too hot for the gallery, for it required only two hours and thirteen minutes to play the 18 holes.

Bishop played beautiful golf this morning. He went to the turn in 34, two under par figures, and started home with a four hole advantage.

Although he was in trouble at the 11th and 15th holes he trotted through the back nine in even par for a 70.

Bishop didn't leave Martin an opening for 10 holes. He was short of the 7th but played a most unusual shot, a high pitch which landed on the front edge of the green and then ran at least 40 feet for an easy par. He was at the lower left hand corner of the 9th green in two but again he chipped stoney for his par.

MARTIN OFF ON GREEN

At the 11th hole, Bishop came up with his first missed shot, a topped brassie, which didn't travel more than 60 yards, and at he 15th he pushed his tee shot into the rough and his second shot landed in the brook for a two stroke penalty.

He sliced again off the 17th tee but played a great recovery shot from the rough to the middle of the green and was down for his par.

Martin's putting cost him the four holes that separated the finalist when they began the afternoon round. He rimmed the cup at the first, missed a two-footer on the sixth and three putted the seventh and ninth.

Finally, on the 18th green Leo dropped a putt. It was a long one for a birdie and a win.

BIDS FOR EAGLE

Both were short of the first green in two and Martin's chip was weak. He wound up with a five, which cost him the hole as Bishop approached dead and holed his four.

After halving the next three holes with regulation pars, Bishop and Martin "birdied" the long fifth. Ted was on in two and Leo just short from where he chipped and holed the putt. Bishop made a fine bid for an "eagle," but the ball failed to drop.

At the 6th, Bishop split the pin with an iron shot, and his ball ran about 12 feet belond the cup. Martin under-clubbed and was off the fringe to the left and shot off the green. Leo clipped on and, with a half within his reach, missed a two footer, and Bishop was 2 up.

With Bishop on the right side of the 7th fairway, Martin pulled his tee shot into the rough but he came through with a great second to the green.

Bishop's second was many yards short of the green but he played the above mentioned high pitch and run shot and won the hole, when Leo took on an extra putt.

MARTIN IN TROUBLE

Both were short of the 8th green in two and chipped close enough to halve the hole with "birdies". Then Bishop went to 4 up when Martin three putted the 9th green.

Bishop connected with two fine shots going to the 10th but Martin was in trouble all the way. He pulled his drive into the rough, played his second down the 11th fairway flubbed an approach and ended a five to be so many down.

Then Martin, by taking advantage of the first opening that Bishop had given him, won the 11th with a birdie. Leo was short of the green in two with Bishop over in three, due to a topped second and approached about six feet short but got his putt.

They went through the 12th and 13th in regulation pars, but with Martin, er, and about 15 feet from the cup er, the 14th green, Ted chipped in for a deuce from just over the green to be five up again.

The 15th was a nightmare for Bishop. He started off by fading his drive into the rough and his second landed in the brook, costing him two strokes and he finally wound up with a six and blew the hole to a par five.

BISHOP COMES BACK

However, Bishop came right back with a win at the 16th, where he hit a beautiful iron to the green, hole high. Leo was short and left himself too much of a putt, so back he went to five down.

Off the 17th tee, Bishop sliced into the rough but he came out well to the middle of the green and got a struggling bed. They were both home at the 18th.

Bishop was away by a matter of a few inches. He putted dead to the cup, but it availed him nothing, for Leo ran his in for a birdie and picked up a hole.

Girl Nines Play at Norumbega

The Franklin Cleaner Girls of Springfield and the Totem Pole lassies continue their personal softball war tomorrow afternoon on the playing field of Norumbega Park.

The up-state team has invaded this section of New England twice this season and on each occasion were sent home decisively defeated.

First the Olympets and then the Norumbega outfit took a full sized swing at the Springfield maids.

Both defeats were administered on the Boston Garden floor, however, and the Franklin Girls are strictly an outdoor team.

Manager Rollie Cote feels that his club does not react normally under the lights, but given an opportunity to perform in their natural surroundings they will vindicate themselves.

On the other hand the Totem Pole team has played most of their games in the Garden and do not show to an advantage in the wide open spaces.

To off-set their inexperience out-of-doors, Ben Levins will send Hermina Franks to the Norumbega hill. Miss Franks has spent most of her softball career playing on the outside fields of Green Bay, Wisconsin. The Franks gal has been to the mound 4 times this year and has yet to be stopped.

Noted Horse Owner Dies

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 13 (AP)—Willis Sharpe Kilmer, 71 publisher of the Binghamton Sun and owner of three of the greatest horses on the American turf—Exterminator, Sun Briar and Sun Beau—died last night.

A well-known manufacturer of medical supplies in addition to his publishing, horse racing and thoroughbred breeding interests, Kilmer succumbed to pneumonia at his summer home at nearby Sky Lake after being in ill health for the past year.

His wife the former Sarah Jane Wells whom he married in Paris, was with him when he died.

Born in Brooklyn, Oct. 18, 1868, Kilmer came to Binghamton with his parents while still a boy. After attending Cornell University he entered into business with his father in the manufacture of medicinal goods.

An early lover of dogs, horses and a tennis and golf enthusiast, he turned soon to the racing

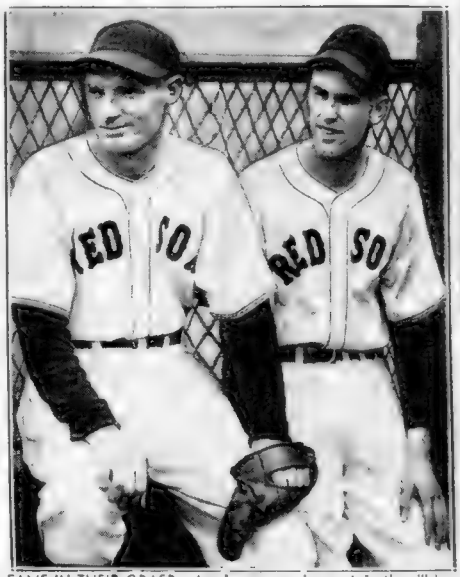
New York Rules On Torn-Up Tickets

By The Associated Press

The New York State Racing Commission finally has obtained a ruling on what to do about winning mutuel tickets that had been torn up by bettors in the mistaken belief that their horse had been beaten.

The commission has announced a ruling from John J. Bennett, Jr., State Attorney General, that no ticket shall be redeemed unless the major portion containing the code word, the number of the horse, the race and the date, is intact.

Sox Bank on These Boys to Aid Hurling



FAME IN THEIR GRASP—And you may be certain there'll be fame and fortune in the good pitching hands of Alex Mustaikis, left, and Earl Johnson if they can win for the Red Sox. Mustaikis, once a Chelsea boy, and Johnson came up to the Sox recently from Scranton and Rocky Mount, respectively.

Sox Southpaw 'Find' To See Action Soon

With the Red Sox facing five games in the next three days, including a doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox today and a twin-bill with the St. Louis Browns on the morrow, it's possible that Boston fans will get their first peek at Earl Johnson before the natives are finished with this heady duty.

In case you weren't looking, Johnson is a tall, slender, young southpaw who was recalled early this week from the Sox farm at Rocky Mount. He's only a year out of St. Mary's College in California.

The odds, it must be admitted, are against such an inexperienced novice being able to step in cold and help a big league pennant contender but the Red Sox pitching being what it is, the club's followers are unanimously in favor of giving this Coast child a chance to display his wares.

MAY GIVE SOX JAB

In the opinion of the customers, new blood can't possibly hurt and might easily help the Hose hurling staff. In fact the boys and girls who pay the freight are convinced that they've seen many kids on the sandlots of Greater Boston who are better pitchers than the majority of the throwers who are receiving fancy salaries from Tom Yawkey.

Of course, these fans are letting their disgust away their better judgment.

There are no hurlers on the sandlots and very few in even the higher minor leagues who could make the grade in the majors. If there were, they'd be in the main tent pulling down the fancy salaries.

There's a possibility, though, that this Johnson lad, despite his youth and his lack of experience and the big jump in class he is attempting, may upset the dope and prove a most valuable addition to the Cronin clan.

He's been exceeding expectations ever since he turned pro.

The Sox took him to Sarasota for training this past spring, not because it was believed he belonged there but rather to stay on the right side of a gentleman who answers to the name of Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The Fenway foremen expected to find a collegian who would be ignorant as to how to stand on the

Howell Widens Lead In International Loop

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—It looks as though nothing short of an act of Congress can get Murray Howell, the Baltimore belter, out of the top spot among the International League's hitters.

The big outfielder boosted his average to a sensational .350 this week to stay on top for the third straight week, and the seventh week this season.

Last Thursday Murray's average was .346 but he took picks on all the pitchers that he faced this week to fatten that mark and strengthen his lead over team-mate Gene Corbett who is in second place with a .336

Dempsey-Godoy Gate Of $150,000 Predicted

NEW YORK, July 12 (INS)—Jack Dempsey, ex-Manassa mauler who showed absolutely no respect for age when he ignored his 45 years recently to flatten a wrestling cowboy, may continue his "comeback" in September against a Chilean tango.

It seems that Jack and Arturo Godoy are fixing to stumble through six rounds in either San Diego, Buenos Aires, Argentine or Caracas, Venezuela, according to Al Weill, the artful one's manager.

"Max Waxman, Dempsey's handler, came to me with the proposition," Weill said. "There have been three offers, one from San Diego and the others from Buenos Aires and Caracas.

FOUGHT FIRPO IN '23

"I understand also that Max Baer has received a $25,000 guarantee to fight Godoy in Buenos Aires. But Maxie probably would rather get his head knocked off again by Louis. He thinks a Louis bout would draw more money. But he's mistaken.

"Guess the Dempsey match has the best possibilities for us now."

Weill believes that South America would prove the most gold-plated paradise for a Dempsey-Godoy harlequinade.

Dempsey has refereed in Caracas and could undoubtedly entice muchos pesos from muchos peons there, as he could in Buenos Aires which recalls how stunningly close Luis Angel Firpo came to corralling Jack's heavyweight crown seventeen years ago.

Weill prognosticated that Dempsey and Godoy might pull $150,000 in Luna Park, Buenos Aires, which he said seats 80,000.

LEVINSKY IN '32

To a comment that the aged Dempsey would be taking a fearful risk with the rugged Godoy if the match were for keeps, Weill replied with typical managerial logic.

"Why? Didn't Dempsey fight King Levinsky in er— er— er— 1932?"

Adding to the unreasonableness of the picture is the challenge to Dempsey from 62-year-old Jack Johnson.

All that is lacking now to prove boxing has gone completely senile is the appearance on the scene of James Figg, Methuselah, a rocking-chair and a pair of bedroom slippers.

ARMSTRONG 12-5 TO WHIP JENKINS

NEW YORK, July 13 (INS)—Barring any unexpected late developments that might affect the bettings odds, Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong is going to be one of the longest-priced favorites ever to meet a hard-punching title-holder in another division when he tangles with exas Lew Jenkins at the Polo Grounds next Wednesday night.

Apparently few are paying much heed to the knockout carried in either hand by Jenkins, and Armstrong is a steady 12 to 5 favorite to get no worse than a decision in the scheduled 12 rounds. Many are betting on him to score a knockout.

And few are remembering either that Armstrong is wealthy and undoubtedly slowed up a little, both important factors, for it was while Armstrong was reaching the top and clinging there that he set his great knockout record.

Jenkins is the hungry fighter in the match and the one who seemingly is still en route to his peak.

The big question, of course, centers around whether he will be able to nail Armstrong early enough to keep from being over-powered by the swarming attack of the little Negro.

BUILT WIN BY K. O.

Among those who are convinced that Jenkins will not only survive that attack but score a knockout is Fred Browning, the lightweight champion's original manager, who still has a financial interest in Jenkins, not to mention other prospering enterprises indigenous to Texas.

Utilizing a pool made up of his own money and that of Texas friends, Browning has wagered, he says, $8500 on Jenkins at 4½ to 1 to score a knockout.

Mr. Browning, of course, will win for himself and friends, $38,250—if Jenkins wins the bout.

One significant thing about that wager is that Mr. Browning wisely is betting on a knockout for Jenkins, the assumption being, apparently, that Jenkins' best chance rests in his being able to hit Armstrong.

If the bout goes the limit, Armstrong probably will be in front due to the pace he will set. Jenkins will get very weary of it all, if he fails to tag the little Negro fairly early and get it over with then and there.

BIG FIGHT OF YEAR

While neither fighter's title will be at stake, the bout may draw more money than any other fight of the year.

The Max Baer-Tony Galento show was expected to be the big event pugilistically for 1940, but it fell below $100,000 and, therefore, did not even approach the Joe Louis-Arturo Godoy bout as a drawing card.

But this one almost certainly will, for, as everybody keeps babbling, this is one of those super-terrific tussles known as a "natural"—on paper.

It probably will be just that actually, too, with a swarming, fast-travelling tough slugger in there with a two-handed one-punch killer like Jenkins.

Bobby Jones Plays Benefit Match Here at The Country Club Tomorrow

After an absence of 12 years Bobby Jones, who won 13 major championship titles, including a grand slam in 1930, when he captured the United States and British open and amateur championships, will arrive here tomorrow morning from New York for the all-star exhibition match, which is scheduled for The Country Club tomorrow afternoon.

Bobby Jones is playing a Red Cross match today at Lido. He will come over from Gotham on the midnight and will check in at the Ritz-Carleton.

Paired with Freddie Wright, seven-time winner of the Bay State amateur crown, Bobby Jones will take on Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford. The entire proceeds from the match will be donated to the American Red Cross.

The match is scheduled to start at 2:30 and the admission will be $1.

Bobby Jones hasn't played here since 1928, when he defeated Phil Perkins, the Englishman, at the Brae Burn Country Club. Two years later, after making a grand slam, Bobby Jones retired from competitive golf. Since then he has played in a few charity exhibition matches and the Masters at Augusta, Ga.

Bobby Jones hasn't been here since the national amateur championship was played at The Country Club in 1934. He was in the gallery that year while Lawson Little was taking over the title from George Dunlap. Back in 1922, Bobby Jones was eliminated in the semi-finals of the United States amateur championships by Jesse Sweetser, who went through and won the title by beating "Chick" Evans.

Bobby Jones is rated as the greatest of all time golfers, while Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford and Freddie Wright are the best ever developed in this section. Although he never won a national title, Freddie Wright is the only golfer ever to win the state amateur title seven times. And, on two occasions, 1921 and 1923, Wright was a member of the U. S. Walker Cup team.

Francis Ouimet made golf in this country by taking the measures of Harry Vardon and Ted Ray at The Country Club, in 1913, during the U. S. open champion. The following year at Manchester, Vt., Francis Ouimet captured the national amateur championship and came back in 1931 at the North Shore Golf Club of Chicago to take over the title for the second time.

With the exception of Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford is the only amateur ever to win the Mass. open title, on two occasions. He topped the pros at Worcester in the Bay State open in 1919 and two years later at St. Louis he beat Bob Gardiner in the finals of the national amateur championship. In 1929, at the Vesper Country Club, Guilford won the state open for the second time and has been the amateur champion of the state three times.

SPEED-BALL HURLERS STILL REIGN SUPREME

There just doesn't seem to be any substitute for speed.

Take the three games played in the major leagues yesterday and last night. In each one a pitcher with a burning, blistering fast ball emerged the hero.

Bobby Feller, whose fast ball in a night game is harder to see than a black cat in a coal mine, came through with his 14th triumph of the season—a splendidly pitched one hitter that blanked the Athletics, 1-0.

The Phils' Hugh Mulcahy, who like Feller is a righthander, was slightly less sensational but almost as effective in scattering seven hits to beat the Pirates, 6-3.

MAHAN AIDS MULCAHY

And the Cubs' Vern Olsen, a portsider with a nice touch of lightning in his Sunday delivery, had the Boston Bees hanging on the ropes as he mixed his high, hard one with his "sinker ball."

They touched him for only five safeties in absorbing a 2-0 shellacking.

Of the three, Feller's performance was by far the finest. He lost his chance for his second no-hitter of the season when Dick (the villain) Siebert punched out a clean single in the eighth inning. Bobby, in keeping the Indians on top of the American League, walked only two batters while striking out 13.

Johnny Babich, Feller's foe, held Cleveland to six hits with a creditable performance. Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau socked successive doubles in the third for the run that spelled victory.

The triumph increased the Indians' lead to one full game over the idle Detroit Tigers.

In the Philly-Pirate game, Mulcahy had to make a deep bow in the direction of Art Mahan, who did yeoman service in the winning cause with a single to right with the bases packed in the fifth inning.

That was the pay-off blow and came after singles by Merrill May and Bob Bragan and a pass to Bill Atwood had loaded the bags.

POSEDEL HURLS WELL

The victory was Mulcahy's eighth against 10 losses. His mates punched out 12 hits—four of them by Mahan—off four Pirate pitchers.

Olsen had quite a day in winning his fifth big league game. He issued seven bases on balls to keep the Bees in the game, but tightened in the pinches and left 12 runners stranded on the bases.

Bill Posedel, Vern's opponent, pitched himself a six hitter and deserved a better fate, but the Cubs bunched two of their blows for a run in the third and got their other run in the seventh when Bobby Mattick walked, went to second on Olsen's sacrifice, got to third on an error and scored in a double steal.

All other games in both leagues were rained out.

Diamond Gems

When the Bees and Dodgers battled 20 innings the other day it recalled the longest games in major league history . . . Boston clubs figured in both . . . most noteworthy baseball Marathon was the Braves-Dodgers 26 inning 1-1 stalemate at Braves Field, May 1, 1920 . . . neither scored after the 6th and Oeschger of the Braves and Cadore of the Dodgers pitched the distance . . . longest A. L. game was the Athletics-Red Sox game of Sept. 1, 1906, on the old Huntington ave. field . . . the A's rushed over 3 runs in the 24th to win, 4-1 . . . both pitchers, Coombs of the A's and Harris of the Sox, went all the way.

Finney Battles 2 White Sox For A. L. Lead

The American League has twins this week, according to the Associated Press batting figures.

Young Taft Wright, who lead the league in hitting a week ago, has been forced to share his throne with his teammate, Luke Appling. The two Chicagoans are hitting the ball at a .356 clip.

Wright had the edge last week with .360, while Appling, a week ago, was in fourth place.

mound, and even before he arrived, they had him ticketed for the lowest club in their minor league chain.

MANUSH CLAIMS KID

What they saw when the youth portsider made his debut was a rookie who all but took their breath away. He had poise, he had stuff, he had control. He looked even better than he had been painted by Scout Earl Sheely, who signed him up.

"Heinie" Manush, who was getting in shape to manager the Rocky Mount entry, witnessed the Johnson bow. Immediately he put in a bid for the tyro.

"The boy looks pretty good," admitted Manager Joe Cronin to Manush, "but that's a pretty fast minor league you're stepping into. Few kids have enough to step right out of college and make good in the Piedmont loop."

"I'll gamble on Johnson," said "Heinie."

So Earl went to Rocky Mount.

What he did to those "fast" minor leaguers down there was a shame.

With a fifth place club, he had a record of 12 wins against four defeats when he was summoned to the varsity.

He had an impressive strikeout record; a more noteworthy record for control.

In short, he was much too good for Class B batters.

Consequently, there's no telling how god he is.

MAY SOLVE SOX PROBLEM

He might have what it takes to become a big league winner within a year after joining the pro ranks. That has happened, though not very often.

Anyway, the Sox can afford to give him a trial.

For he could be the answer to all their pitching problems and he couldn't possibly be any worse than almost every member of the staff has been too often this season.

Joe Cronin has as yet made no plans concerning Johnson but he'll have the kid in the bull-pen today just in case.

Jim Bagby is down to start the first tilt this p. m. "Black Jack" Wilson, who was to have worked yesterday, if rain hadn't interfered, will open the nightcap.

FINNEY ON SHELF

Teddy Lyons and either Jack Knott or Bill Dietrich will twirl for the Pale Hose.

Dom DiMaggio will play right-field for the Fenway Flock in place of Lou Finney, the club's leading hitter, who was on the injured list with a bruised knee suffered when he tripped over first base in Thursday's tilt.

And Tommy Carey will continue to spell Boss Cronin at shortstop. Pilot Joe hasn't yet recovered from the cold he picked up in St. Louis.

Bees Max West Earns 'Man of Week' Honors

By International News Service

Max West, tall rangy outfielder of the Boston Bees, draws the little brass ring this week, for his home run that put the crusher on the American Leaguers in the all-star game.

You may recall that Max came up in the first inning with two men on base and Red Ruffing pitching. The Yankee ace threw Max a low fast ball, and Max promptly parked it in the right field stands.

Max West

In the next inning Max was injured, making a sensational attempt to rob Lake Appling of a legitimate two-bagger. He crashed into the concrete wall in his desperate bid to get the ball. Fortunately, he was not seriously injured.

When Max joined the Bees at start of the 1938 season he only three years out of high school. He had shown marked ability to hit for distance with the Missions of the Pacific Coast League, but his fielding left much to be desired.

In fact, the Bees were warned by the owner of the coast club not to buy him because he would need an umbrella to catch a fly ball.

The big fellow even now is no trie speaker in the outfield but he is good enough, and he is improving every day.

How good he is may best be judged from the fact that all though the winter several other National League clubs were trying to lure him from the Bees.

He was born in Dexter, Mo. 24 years ago but makes his home in Alhambra, Cal. He is 6 feet 1½ inches tall and weighs 186. He throws with his right hand and bats left handed.
